

THE DAILY WORKMAN.

J. L. MICHAUX, Editor.
J. S. MICHAUX, Local Editor.

—Sam Jones is preaching in his accustomed way at Danville. He is a wonderful man. If he be a crank, as some are pleased to say, he is putting himself to a good use. No modern crank has had such power to turn things completely around, inside outward and upside down. He is not afraid of offending men by telling them of their sins. A peculiarity of his preaching is that his denunciations of sin do not drive his hearers away. Many a man knows how to denounce sin, but hasn't the power to do it so effectually as to bring the sage hearer back. In this he is peculiar, and we regard it as a divine gift. Danville people adjourned their tobacco sales from 10 o'clock to 11:30 a. m., to give sellers and buyers a chance to hear the great preacher, and they are availing themselves of the opportunity.

MR. EDITOR: Please publish the following extracts for general information:

Rev. R. G. Pearson writes from Fayetteville, 14th. "The Lord is graciously blessing 'this people', and there are many confessions of faith in Christ every day. I regret exceedingly we cannot continue here longer, but under existing circumstances, it seems best to close, and come to you on time. I expect to reach Greensboro on Saturday and request that the Pastors, chief usher, and the leader of the music, will meet me at five o'clock, that after noon. I hope to find every thing ready, and my first service will be Sunday night.

Dr. Smith requests me to extract this from the letter, and I would venture to call the meeting alluded to above, in the Baptist Church at 5 P. M., Saturday.

Good Men

I like the Norwegians. They are honest. I certainly have never seen the slightest disposition to cheat, or to be dishonest. If there is any evidence of honesty, these people are wonderfully so. They hang keys to their storehouses and granaries—keys big enough to brain a man with. They are nearly always in the keyhole or hanging somewhere within reach of one feloniously inclined. At wayside stations curiosities—sometimes of small silverware—are exposed in the public room, where anyone can easily carry them off. Farm houses are left open when the whole family goes off to cut hay, and in some unfrequented localities, the wayfarer goes in, builds a fire, and cooks a meal; goes to the store room, helps himself to milk and "flat broed," and leaves on the table money enough to pay for what he has used. Frequently a post-boy (he is sometimes a man and not infrequently a girl or woman) has taken what I have paid for his dues, putting it into his pocket without counting. He always, however, sees what you give him as a gratuity, and shakes you by the hand when he says "tak" (thanks). I gave a servant girl too much for our dinner. She was much amused when she followed me, that I should have made such a blunder. At wayside stations they charge ridiculously low prices, and as far as I can learn make no distinction in making charges to foreigners and home people.

They are a sturdy, fine-looking people, and are the most thorough democrats on the face of the globe. They have abolished all titles and nobility, and have not learned to worship wealth. One man is quite as good as another, and his bearing shows he thinks so. He takes off his hat when he meets you on the roadside, but does it as freely to the coachman who drives as to the rich man who lolls back in the carriage. They are good natured people, I am sure. The kitchen is the living room in a well-to-do farmhouse. I have walked into these frequently, and generally found the mothers putting the finishing touches to the pot when preparing a meal; and I could never tell which were the daughters of the house and which the servants. By the way, the latter are not ashamed of their calling, and when I have asked a pretty one if she were the daughter, she says: "Obl nei; I am a servant." Many of the women in the mountains and upper valleys are very comely—not beauties, but ruddy, rosy, plump and healthy specimens of femininity.—Carter Harrison, in Chicago Mail.

Montana Democratic.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 15.—The Journal's Helena, Montana, special says the Constitutional Convention will be democratic by about five majority.

In 1871 contracted Blood Poison of bad type, and was treated with mercury, iodine, and arsenic mixtures growing worse all the time. I took 7 small bottles S.S.S. which cured me entirely, and no sign of the dreadful disease has returned. I was cured in 20 days. Price, 25 cents. Jan. 10, '89. Hobbyville, Ind.

My little niece had white swelling so such an extent that she was confined to the bed for a long time. More than 30 pieces of bone came out of her leg, and the doctors said amputation was the only remedy to save her life. I refused the operation and put her on S.S.S. and she is now up and active in as good health as any child. Miss Anna Gessner, Feb. 14, '89. Columbus, Ga.
