Butler and Aycock.

The Observer has had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Aycock more than once, and knows him as one of the strongest speakers in the State. Yesterday it seemed that he was at his very best. The "Promethean fire" glowing warm in his breast; the utter defeat of his antagonist.

Mr. Steele then introduced Mr. Arion Bulter. It would be unfair to deny him ability. As Mr. Aycock said, he is one of the smartest men in the Weaver ranks; but, like Major Bagstock in Dombey and Son he is "devilish sly." He finds himself in an indefensible position, which he has studied over carefully and made the best of it. His whole speech of one hour and a half was a succession of specious appeals to those who want office in the new party or are for different reasons dissatisfied with the existing order of things. There is no one who could act more efficiently as trumpeter for the calamity howlers of the country. His explanation of his desertion of the Democratic party and his abandonment of the ticket he had helped to form was lame—distressingly lame—and it occurred to the Observer that he must have a poor opinion of the intelligence of a Mecklenburg audience to suppose that such stuff would pass muster with it.

Mr. Aycock's rejoinder was a sort of deluge of deserved invective, and Butler just sat and let it pour down. In the most scathing terms he characterized his antagonist's speech as the most remarkable utterance he had ever heard—that a man should glory in his bad faith; and to the intense amusement of at least the Democratic part of the crowd, quoted again and again from Butler's paper, to his utter stultification.

Mr. Bulter in his rejoinder was utterly silent as to this excitation—in fact it was unanswerable. He confined his time to the government ownership of railroad, telegraphs, and money—except that he found time, although his train was waiting for him, to indulge in a fulsome eulogy of Weaver. And there were indications that this was a little too much for even the most enthusiastic Third party followers.

Throughout the whole discussion the only political criminals Mr. Butler could find were the Democrats; he let the Republicans severely alone.—Charlotte Observer.

THIS MORNING'S FIRE.

FIVE HOUSES ON 8TH ST. WERE COMPLETELY DESTROYED.

Fire destroyed five wooden buildings owned by colored citizens on east Eighth street at 2:30 o'clock this morning. The fire was first discovered in the store room of Frank Wright, but its origin is not known. Wright had an insurance of $1,700 on the building and stock of goods. Fifty dollars in money was also burned up. The other buildings were a hotel and out houses owned by Rev. W. L. Bethel, and a dwelling house of Richard Mebane. Bethel's property was insured for $2,100 and his loss is estimated at $2,500. Mebane was insured for $300.

The Winston and Salem Fire Companies were on hand and did good work, considering the distance they had to throw water. The companies attached their hoses together and, through the efforts of the firemen, the Zion church and other buildings near by were saved from destruction.—Winston Sentinel.

CHOLERA PREVAILS.

Havre, Sept. 7.—There were nine teen new cases and eleven deaths Wednesday and eight fewer cases than on Tuesday.

London, Sept. 8.—The local government board declares that there is not a case of cholera in Great Britain or Ireland.

Bremen, Sept. 8.—No case of cholera has been reported here since Sunday, and it is claimed that the city is free from the disease.

Washington, Sept. 8.—The State Department has advised the Treasury Department that Vice Consul Vissere, at Rotterdam, had cabled the President of cases of cholera in that port.

Berlin, Sept. 8.—A woman, who arrived in Berlin yesterday, was seized with cholera today. Owing to the scourge the Emperor has countermanded the orders for military maneuvers to have been held at Waterbury.

Washington, Sept. 8.—Official notification of the order of Council of the Province of Quebec prohibiting immigration by water and land was received at the State Department today from the United States consul at Quebec.

The Navy Department Takes Quarantine Patrol.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The Navy Department today assumed charge of the quarantine patrol of New York harbor. It will place an officer from the Brooklyn Navy Yard in charge of the patrol vessels in the lower bay. The New Hampshire will be turned over to the State authorities for use as a hospital for the detention of cabin passengers. The old monitor Nantucket will be used as a sort of flagship and place of rendezvous for the hospital boats. Gen. Grant, the Acting Secretary of War, has decided to tender the use of 400 tents to the Treasury Department for the use of persons from infected ships on Hoffman and Swinburne Islands.

THE DREAD YELLOW FLAG HOISTED.

QUARANTINE, Sept. 8.—A dispatch received from Sandy Hook says the Rugia, Normandic and Hoffman Island hoisted the yellow flag this morning. According to the code of signals arranged by Dr. Jenkins yesterday this means that the scourge has fastened on more victims. Until the official report comes from the vessels and island it will be impossible to learn how many have been taken ill or whether they are dead.

A death is reported this morning of a cholera patient on Swinburne Island as having occurred last night.

The government tug Narkeeta is patrolling the sound off Willet's Point with orders to stop all vessels from foreign ports.

Rev. Egbert W. Smith, who was in the city yesterday, has lately returned from the western part of the state, having been there in the interest of the Synod. The Presbyterian Church is evangelizing the mountainous region as rapidly as possible. Churches and schools have been placed in a number of barren places.—Charlotte Observer.

The Landmark says that Dr. L. White, of Charlotte, has decided to locate in Stateville for the practice of his profession—dentistry—and will be ready for business by the 15th.

Mild, gentle, soothing and healing is Dr. Sage's catarrh remedy. Cures the worst forms permanently. No experimenting. It's "Old Reliable." 25 years of success.

SPREADING OF YOU

Mr. G. Will Armfield returned last night from Lynchburg, and is very busy today.

Prof. John S. Ray, of Kernersville, an educator of much note in former days, and who has been mayor of his town, as well as a promoter of its interests in other ways, was on a visit here today, looking little, if any older than he did twenty years ago. He leads a quiet life, so conducive to health and longevity.

Rev. Walter Curtis and his mother from Franklinsville, were here today.

Mr. J. A. Redding, Mrs. Redding and the children, from Millboro, were in the city today.

Mrs. W. C. Kennett, who has been up on a visit to her father and other relations in this section, returned to her home at Enfield today.

Hon. W. M. Robbins, with one of his daughters and a young female companion, went up to Salem today, where Miss Robbins will enter upon a course of music.

Mrs. W. H. Branson and children, who have been on a visit to friends in this city, returned to their home at Durham this morning.

Mr. W. R. Burgess, Mrs. Burgess, Mr. and Mrs. Watson, and the entire family, took the train here today for Florida, to which State they go for the sake of Mr. Burgess' health, which has for a long time been feeble. The numerous friends of the family and of Mr. Burgess also wish that the change may effect the restoration of his health.

Mrs. R. F. Boyd, on her arrival at Winston, found her mother absent, and then she returned to this city.

Mrs. G. W. Kastler in on a visit to the Concord Fair.

Mr. G. H. Makepeace, who went to Mount Airy some days ago for his health was attacked with cholera morbus from which he suffered severely. He was here today.

Mrs. Kathryn Keogh-Conrad, of Danville, Va., is here on a visit to her friend, Miss Eugene Gray.

Miss Josephine Smith, of Raleigh, is here on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Gales.

(Communicated.)

Death of Mrs. Mooney. This morning the body of Mrs. Mooney, of Raleigh, N. C., passed through from Winston, N. C., where she died.

She was a sister of Rev. Mr. Wiley's wife and daughter of Mrs. M. Ann Fowler, of Raleigh, N. C., and a niece of James R. Callum, of Greensboro. She had been sick a long time and went to Winston for her health. She was a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church. She leaves a husband and two children to mourn her loss, and many friends. Our loss is their gain. The bible says, the day of death is better than ones being found ready to go.

All special travellers or soliciting agents resident in Greensboro, or making headquarters in the city, who have been in the cause of Democracy at heart are requested to meet at the McAdams house, on Saturday, September 11th at 8 o'clock, p. m., for the purpose of organizing a Democratic Campaign Club and opening headquarters in this city for distribution of campaign literature and other work under the county Executive Committee. Sept. 5-1w

SHOE MENDING.

J. S. EDWELL, SYCAMORE STREET, NEAR THE MARKET.

Makes and mends shoes in first rate style, and at prices lower than the same work is charged for elsewhere. This is plain talk, but if you try it, you will find it true. Economy is a great thing and a thing that can be practiced in shoes as well as in anything else.
