POPULAR SCIENCE

The inertia of a 2000-pound automobile at seventy-five miles an hour is calculated by E. Hospitalier to be the same as would be given by a fall of 196 feet. The retarding power developed by the brakes on the trail tires must average about sixty horse power, though the maximum strain may be nearly twice as great.

The explosion motor holds the palm for lightness. The best electric motor with its storage battery is said to weigh nearly 100 pounds to the horse power, and the Serpollet steam engine, flashing water into steam from a coil boiler, about fourteen pounds. But the Bordiaux gasoline engine gives a horse power with a weight of only eight pounds.

A test was recently made at Cornell University to determine what is the proportion between the power expended and the power produced in the liquefaction of air. It was found that the use of one horse power continuously for one hour produced just enough liquid air to produce, in its turn, one horse power for one minute. It is said that the best known method for liquefying air would not increase this time beyond five minutes.

The new self-luminous mixture of a French chemist, claimed to require only very short exposure to light and to be unusually brilliant and lasting, consists of twenty parts of dehydrated sodium carbonate, five of sodium chloride, one of magnesium sulphate, 500 of strontium carbonate and 150 of sulphur. The well-mixed materials are kept at a white heat for three hours in a muffle from which the air is carefully excluded.

Casks of corkwood, the recent invention of a resident of Algeria, are claimed to have important advantages. Cork being a bad conductor of heat, liquids are protected from freezing on exposure to cold, and perishable substances are preserved from heat in warm climates. An interior coating keeps the contents from contact with the cork. The staves do not warp, and an eleven-gallon cask weighed only thirty pounds instead of the eighty pounds that would have been its weight in ordinary wood.

In a recent issue of the journal of the British Society of Arts some striking examples of the effect of the use of science in German factories are given. In 1840 154,000 tons of beet root were crushed, from which 8000 tons of raw sugar were produced—about five and one-half per cent. In 1860 1,500,000 tons were treated and produced 128,000 tons of sugar—eight per cent. In 1901 12,000,000 tons were crushed and yielded 1,500,000 tons of raw sugar—thirteen per cent. This increase of quantity, as well as percentage of product, is due entirely to scientific treatment. The production of dry colors, chemicals and dyes in Germany shows a corresponding increase in production and dividend-paying capacity, which is due to the constant maintenance of laboratories of trained scientists, whose only purpose is to improve and cheapen processes.

French Lawyers.

French lawyers, especially the younger members of the profession, have a grievance that has been loudly voiced by Maitre Antoin Oudart. The law which gives defense at a minimum charge in case of appeal to thrifty, the criminal, the widows and the orphans are taking increasing advantage of the generous provision and asking the court to appoint lawyers to defend them. Last year, out of 29,031 criminal cases in the Paris courts, 9034 pleaded poverty, and secured defense at the quoted rates, 10 francs a day, payable out of the treasury.

"A man should live by his occupation," says the eloquent maitre, "but the Parisian lawyer cannot do so. We ought to plead to live, not to be compelled to live to plead. Strike is out of the question, because the traditions of the bar have made the barrister an officer of the court, and to always obey its mandates is a duty, but hardly a pleasure."—Chicago Chronicle.

Ancient Tiles.

The discovery of the encaustic tiling in the Babylonian palace of Nebuchadnezzar proves that in fineness of glazing and coloring the people of the time of Abraham were as proficient in certain classes of art work as the best of the modern artists. The world seems always to have had latent ability to excel in the production of beautiful things, and it has been manifested in past ages wherever race, climate and governmental conditions made it possible. This age has achieved more than any other largely because of the growth of free government and the fortunate mingling of races in Eastern Europe and in America, and the consequent rise of high ideals in every department of human activity.—Boston Transcript.

 Acts Pleasantly;
 Acts Beneficially;
 Acts truly as a Laxative.

Syrup of Figs appeals to the cultured and the well-informed and to the healthy, because its component parts are simple and wholesome and because it acts without disturbing the natural functions, as it is wholly free from every objectionable quality or substance. In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal virtues of Syrup of Figs are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially.

Joke on Professor Virchow.
 The late Prof. Virchow was blessed with a lively sense of humor and enjoyed a joke none the less though told against himself. One day, while lecturing, he became provoked because a student could not tell the exact color of a preparation shown to him. "What would you say was the color of my coat?" he asked somewhat sarcastically. The garment had seen its best days and the student replied with marked emphasis: "It seems to have been blue." The professor laughed heartily at the retort, and after a few more questions passed the student.

Rheumacide

Cures Rheumatism and Sciatica by neutralizing the acids in the blood and driving them out of the system. Is far better than the best blood purifier. All blood diseases yield promptly to this great remedy.

In the fall-winter of 1900 I was afflicted with Sciatic Rheumatism, so much so that I had to use a cane to assist me in walking. Upon sitting down, there was no ease to my thigh, and the only position in which I could bear my leg was straight out in front of me, while in a reclining position. Realizing the nature of the disease, I began treatment at once, but received no relief until induced by Mr. J. T. Doster, of Greenville, of the drug firm of Bruce & Doster, to take "RHEUMACIDE." I purchased a bottle from them under the guarantee of Mr. Doster that if 3 bottles did not cure me the money would be refunded. One bottle relieved me, and I have had no touch of rheumatism since that time.

W. A. Palmer, who lived here at the time (1901), was down with a severe attack of rheumatism, and for six weeks had to be turned in bed on a sheet. After the use of several bottles of RHEUMACIDE, he was pronounced well by the attending physician, who is a great believer in the efficacy of your medicine.
