Mr. and Mrs. John W. Brown Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Brown entertained friends at their new home, Mr. Brown having erected a new five-room brick house on the highway a short distance from his father's home. We all rejoice with him, but we didn't know we were going to get in on the real fun. They very quietly moved into their new home, and we hardly knew they had moved when the invitations were received by many say, "Come to my house Saturday, September 18, at 6 o'clock. We are going to have an old-time fish fry."

Those enjoying their hospitality were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Brown and son, Tommie, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brown and daughter, Evelyn, Mr. Carl Parrish and two children, Mrs. Ola Parrish, Mr. and Mrs. Vick Capps and child, Mr. and Mrs. O. We hope she lives to enjoy many more.

Circle "C" Meets With Mrs. Macon Williams

Circle "C" of the Methodist church met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Macon Williams, with Mrs. H. W. Everitt as leader. Twenty members were present.

The devotional, "Our Commission," was read by Mrs. Williams. The program, "The Woman in the Home," was given by Mesdames Gaskill, Aycock and Norton.

After the business meeting was finished, Mrs. Williams called on each member to write a poem—the subject, "The Butter Dish." The contents of the butterdish turned out something like this:

There was once a lovely butter dish that adorned a lady's table. It's now in an antique shop with an enormous label.

The butter used to be in the butter dish.

Now it's down in the store. The reason the butter is not in the butter dish

Is because it costs points galore. I wish, I wish, I wish I had butter in my butter dish

Since butter takes so many points; It's too great an annoyance.

But the war will soon be over The butter dish filled again, And we will all be happy And peace will ever remain.

So I bought a glass butter dish; I filled it with candy,

Then I dusted the lid and it looked dandy. Now if you buy a war bond, it surely will come in handy.

And if you will buy an extra one, I'll let you eat the candy.

The butter dish, filled with candy, was then auctioned off to the highest bidder, Mrs. Paul Starling. The proceeds went into the treasury.

The guests then assembled in the dining room where tea was served. The tea table was presided over by Mrs. Neva Royal, mother of Mrs. Williams.

you kill a moose you really get a pile of meat.

The caribou are really plentiful whenever you see them but they are constantly moving so you don't have them at one place all the year round. I saw dozens of mountain goats and sheep and even though I have seen them on the sides of these steep mountains I still don't see how they stay up there. I have never seen them any place except high up in the mountains, usually just below the line where green grass starts to grow. Their trails are plainly seen from the air and they surely are in lots steeper places than a man would dare to go. Some of them had pretty little kids. They are all just as white as snow.

Guess that's about enough about one little trip. Don't forget that I saw enough official stuff on this trip to write a 15 page report which didn't include any of the stuff I told you in this letter. In other words it wasn't entirely a pleasure trip.

Love as ever,
JOHN BROADWELL
