Notice To Wholesalers
And Retailers of Sugar

Twice each year wholesalers and retailers may apply to boards for replacement of sugar lost in re-packing. This covers a six month period ending either October 31st or April 30th. Applications may be made on Form R-315 for the past 6 months, either in the month of May or November. The application should contain the following information:

1. Amount of sugar re-weighed in the past six months.
2. The amount of sugar lost in re-weighing. This does not apply to any sugar which is handled in packages.

Wholesalers and Retailers
Canned Soaked Blackeye Peas.
Canned soaked blackeye peas, with or without pork, carry the same point value as given the beans, all canned or bottled, dried varieties. You will find this listed on April Processed Food Point value list 14, the second item in the canned vegetable section. Canning Sugar Applications.

There are many people making applications for canning sugar who are making a serious mistake in sending the wrong stamp for each member of the family group. The proper stamp to detach from War National Book No. 4 is SPARE STAMP No. 37. Do not detach Sugar Stamp No. 37.

Institutional Users of Food.
All Institutional users must apply for their May-June allotment between May 1st and May 15th in order to receive their full allotment. Applications made after May 15th will cause a reduction in the allotment in the amount of the per centage of the period that has passed.

Those who did not bring their January-February Tax Receipts will have to bring them before the May-June allotment can be issued. They should also bring the March-April Tax Receipts. It is necessary that the Forms R-1311 be presented for the months of March and April.

The Regulations states that persons living in Group Three establishments will have 10 points per week of meats and fats and 10 points per week of Processed Foods, removed where the person lives for 7 days and eats no less than 8 meals elsewhere. However, for each two weeks a person lives in such an establishment 30 points of meat, should be removed rather than 20.

All Group THREE establishments who have boarders as described above should become more active in the collection of points from this class of boarders if they expect to continue to operate without jeopardizing their future position.

Any person boarding regularly with a GROUP THREE establishment should offer their books for the detachment of those points and save the proprietor the embarrassment of having to ask for them.

Group Three establishments should surrender detached points to the Board with their application at each allotment period.

our house in the air," he stated. "I slammed the door and my wife, son and I huddled in the hall as the storm struck. It was over ten seconds later and there we were in the open air. Our house had been shattered to pieces."

The Little home was owned by D. B. Oliver of Pine Level.

Other Damages

At the Archie Woodard home, in addition to the damage to the house, two tobacco barns were blown down, 500 chickens were lost and 900 pounds of meat was blown away. The Woodard home is the property of Allard Creech.

At the Garland Howell place, which is owned by Fred Hinnant, a smoke house and shelter were splintered and parts of the outbuildings were scattered over a field of newly-planted cotton. The Howell dwelling was picked up from its foundation by the tornado and moved a distance of 10 or 15 yards. The Howells lost 200 pounds of lard and 300 jars and canned fruit along with other destroyed belongings.

Joe Tom Creech's home, owned by Fred Holloman was moved from its foundation and badly torn up, though not totally destroyed.

House Unroofed

Clarence Strickland's residence, situated on the edge of the storm's path, was unroofed and shaken from its foundation. A meat house, stables, packhouse and chicken house were also damaged at the Strickland place. In the chicken house a can of kerosene spilled and drenched 475 biddies, some of them dying.

E. O. Core lost three tobacco barns which were located in a pine grove near Highway 70. The pine trees were denuded and many of them cut down.

Telephone and electric lines along Highway 70 and the Southern Railway between Pine Level and Princeton were blown down. Some of the telephone poles were ripped up and carried across the highway.

The tornado traveling in a north-easterly direction swept across the highway and railroad.

R. A. Aycock's shelter and smoke house suffered damage and Walter Williams lost a tobacco barn, which was blown into bits and scattered over a wide area.

Fred Earp, whose place was probably the first struck by the twister, lost a tobacco barn.

Selma Man Eye Witness To Storm

Mr. R. Monroe Pittman of the Pittman Hatchery in Selma, who was returning from Goldsboro, said soon after coming across the overpass about a mile this side of Princeton, he saw debris flying in the air and recognized the storm as a tornado. Mr. Pittman said: "I knew my old Pontiac would do its stuff, so I began stepping on the gas, I kept one eye on the road and the other on the storm, and the further up the road I came the more I became convinced that I was facing destruction unless I could clear the path of the storm before it hit the highway, so I stepped on the gas some more. I saw huge sheets of something scurrying around with the storm as well as tops of trees, limbs, boards and every conceivable article imaginable just flying in the air, all going at lightning speed in a circle. I saw a bomber plane approach the center of the storm and then appeared to take a nose dive and shot out of my sight into the swirling mass of storm clouds. I did not see the plane any more. I was greatly impressed by the movement of the dark mass of clouds surrounding the center of the storm which were being sucked in with a speed like nothing I had ever seen before. I passed before the path of the tornado only a few hundred yards from where it crossed the highway, at which point I was in the outer rim, and while there had fallen practically no rain up to that time, the heavens seemed to open up and the greatest deluge of rain I have ever seen came sweeping down, obliterating all vision and forcing me to slow down until the worst had passed."

Mr. Pittman says as a rule he is not easily excited but said he would have to admit that was one time when he felt quite insecure.
