

New Year Babe Linked To Greek Mythology

Many of us, on December 31, find ourselves in a hurry to get ready for the New Year. But the New Year, in Greek mythology, is a goddess, a young woman, a babe, who is the daughter of Cronus, the god of agriculture, with Rhea, his wife. She is the goddess of the New Year, and she is the daughter of Cronus, the god of agriculture, with Rhea, his wife. She is the goddess of the New Year, and she is the daughter of Cronus, the god of agriculture, with Rhea, his wife.

The New Year Babe may be as old as the hills. An infant was regarded as a symbol of rebirth in many cultures. In the Greek pantheon, the New Year Babe was the daughter of Cronus, the god of agriculture, with Rhea, his wife. She is the goddess of the New Year, and she is the daughter of Cronus, the god of agriculture, with Rhea, his wife.

Changes In Your Social Security

Many workers who are of retirement age are still working full time at regular employment. It is believed that a great number of these workers have not applied for their Social Security benefits because they are still working. If you are one of these workers, you should contact your Social Security Office at your earliest convenience. It may be possible for you to work and still receive benefits for some months of the year. This will depend on the amount of your benefit and the amount of your earnings.

There are several reasons why a person of retirement age should contact his Social Security Office even though he is still working. (1) A man or woman may, in some cases, continue to work full time and still be entitled to some benefits for the year. (2) A person can establish entitlement to benefits while he is still working, and his claim can be completely processed before he retires. This can be done even though his earnings at present prevent him from receiving benefits. The earnings delay in receiving benefits at the time he finally does retire.

There is often a delay in payment when people do not have the necessary proof and other required information available when they file their application. If an application is filed in advance of actual retirement, a person will have ample time to secure the necessary proof for completion of his claim. This will eliminate the last rush to secure the needed information which might delay your benefit check. The Social Security Administration is unable to take any action toward preparing a person for retirement until he has filed an application. You should contact your Social Security District Office immediately. The office serving Duplin County is located at 911 E. Walnut Street in Goldsboro. For those unable to come to Goldsboro, Field Representative Ed Deane will be at the Courthouse in Kenansville each Tuesday (except holidays) at 10:00 a. m. Mr. Deane, as well as the employees of the District Office, are always at your service to help you with your Social Security problems.

"A Woman's Corner"

If you have trouble getting started on these cold winter mornings, chances are you are not eating the right kind of breakfast. Or perhaps you are substituting a coffee break for a good breakfast.

Compare your body to a machine. It won't operate at peak efficiency without adequate amounts of the right fuel. A recent study by nutritionists revealed that workers did significantly more work when they ate an adequate breakfast.

Why not add another New Year's resolution to your list now - "Better breakfast for my family in '63." Send your family off in the best possible condition to start their new day.

Just what makes up a good breakfast to get you and the family going? It should contain: citrus fruit or juice, meat and/or eggs, cereal and milk and/or toast and milk.

Citrus fruit or juice is a source of vitamin C which is needed for healthy gums and for building resistance to infection. High quality protein is found in meat and is the first essential to building strong, healthy and vigorous bodies.

Here's a motto that is well worth keeping in mind in cool weather and the whole year through - "Better Breakfasts Build Better Bodies."

CORN MEAL WAFFLES make a delightful breakfast treat. Here's the recipe: 1 cup enriched self-rising flour (1 sifted), 1 cup enriched self-rising corn meal, 2 T. sugar, 2 eggs, separated, 1/4 cup melted shortening or oil, 1 to 1 1/2 cups milk.

School And Your Child

Classics For College-Bound Age 13 is the reading list for many youngsters. Their hunger for print is so intense that they actually ask for suggestions. And they devour practically everything - even classics.

When such enthusiasm prevails, parents should be ready with good advice. They need to be able to pass on to their teenagers more titles than few favorites of their own, which may overly reflect parental taste.

It is fine for mother and father to let their children know what they like. But it's also wise to encourage them to sample classics on all subjects.

A good guide of 10 "outstanding books for college-bound" students has been given to me by Mrs. Fred Gragg, head of the English department of the laboratory high school on the campus of Appalachian State Teachers College, Boone, N. C.

The list, compiled by the Book Selection Committee of the American Library Association and published in the NIEA JOURNAL, includes books that satisfy nearly every interest.

Each book can be considered a classic that is one which has stood the test of time for having something worthwhile to offer.

Here are some of the titles. And they're good reading not just for the "college-bound" but any intelligent person. Pride and Prejudice, Jane Austen. Jane Eyre, Charlotte Bronte.

Gumperson's Law

(Editor's Note: "Gumperson's Law," a bit of philosophy to help you get through the holidays and help you prepare for the New Year, is taken from the 1963 edition of the Engagement Book, published in November by Changing Times Magazine.)

January is a good time to think about the law of Gumperson's Law, or, as it is known to most laymen, Gumperson's Law. It will refresh your understanding of the universe and steel you for the year ahead, a year that is not going to be any better than the last one as you know perfectly well. Why not? Gumperson's Law is still unrepudiated.

For those of you who are unaware, Gumperson's Law simply explains a number of irritating events that might otherwise be put down to mere chance. It is Gumperson's Law, for example, that causes the grass to grow in the cracks of concrete sidewalks but not on the lawn.

It accounts, too, for the fact that you can throw a blunt match out the window of your car and start a forest fire while you can use two boxes of matches and a white edition of the Sunday paper without being able to start a fire under the dry logs in your fireplace.

The law, stated simply, is that the contradictory of a well-known probability will assert itself whenever such an eventuality is likely to be most frustrating. Readers familiar with these matters will perhaps recognize another version of the law: The outblow of a given desired probability will be inverse to the degree of desirability.

A brief elucidation of the law, with details on its origin and development, is presented herewith for the benefit of the lay reader. Dr. R. F. Gumperson, internationally famous physicist, began serious work in 1938 on a phenomenon long known to scientists but up until then considered as a mere curiosity. This was the fact that the forecasting record of the weather bureau, despite its use of the most advanced equipment and highly trained personnel, was not as good as that of the Old Farmer's Almanac. After four years of research, Dr. Gumperson announced his new famous law and was able to make a series of predictions. Later, confirmed by other scientific workers in the field, he was able to make a series of predictions. Later, confirmed by other scientific workers in the field, he was able to make a series of predictions.

Changes In Your Social Security

By Ed Deane, Field Representative

The fourth calendar quarter of 1962 is drawing to a close. The Social Security District Office suggests that now is a good time for employers to think about their quarterly tax returns which they will have to file with the Internal Revenue Service by January 31, 1963. Employers should make sure that their records contain the correct social security number and name of each employee.

People often wonder and ask how the Social Security Administration can keep all of the millions of individual earnings accounts straight. We count on the men, women and machines in our Accounting Division in Baltimore, but we know that we cannot keep accurate records without the cooperation of employers and employees. We know that every employer wants to send in complete and correct quarterly returns, but there is sometimes misunderstanding about what constitutes complete and correct quarterly returns.

First of all the employer must have complete and accurate records. It is important for the employer to see the social security card of each worker that he hires. He should record the employee's social security number and name exactly as they are shown on the card. He should keep accurate records of the wages paid to each employee. After the end of each calendar quarter, the employer should file a complete and correct quarterly return.

over having put his mind into any one of them. In many books, it is much knowledge; but in many books may be little wisdom. And by itself will not prepare a youth for living. In two states young people can legally vote at the age of 18, in two others, 19 and 20, and in all the rest, 21. The theory is that anybody old enough to fight is old enough to vote. But is this true? Does any one suppose that every boy or girl just turned 18 is suddenly endowed with the sense and the ability to make the wisest choice? Mandated of a good voter? Many years will not bring wisdom.

Uncle Pete From Chittlin Switch

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:
On account of the fine education I got down through the years from Federal handouts from all them Federal agencies, I ain't never had much need for a dictionary. One in a great while I might make a misce in my spelling, but them occasions is so rare that it don't bother me none.

And it's for the same reason that I ain't never invested in a Encyclopedia. Any fellow that studies real good all the information they put in the pamphlets from the Department of Agriculture, the Government Printing Office, the U. S. Information Agency, to name a few I got regular, knows about all they is to know about anything 'important.

For instant, I received notice last week that the U. S. Information Agency has got four new booklets ready for the taxpayers. They is entitled, "Space Exploration," "Trade Expansion," "Mending Men's Suits," and "Growing Oranges in Ham-bone." If a fellow will put his name on the proper Government mailing flats, they ain't no need, Mister Editor, for him to buy a Encyclopedia.

What Questions Vets Are Asking

Here are authoritative answers by the Veterans Administration to questions from former servicemen and their families:

Q-Is there a new law changing the disability rating for peacetime veterans to qualify for vocational rehabilitation?

A-One difference between the original vocational rehabilitation law and the new law is that a peacetime veteran with a disability rated less than 30 percent must have "a pronounced employment handicap" in order to qualify for vocational rehabilitation.

Q-When can I expect the regular and special dividend on my GI insurance?

A-The regular and special dividend checks will be mailed in January. VA officials expect that 75 percent of all dividend checks will be in the mail by mid-January.
