Mrs. Thigpen Guest Speaker At W of C

The Women of the Church of Grove Presbyterian Church were fortunate in having Mrs. Orzo Thigpen of Beulaville as guest speaker at their regular meeting on Monday evening.

Mrs. Thigpen reviewed the mission study book which is a study of Southeastern Asia, composed of Formosa, Hong Kong and Korea. In a most impressive talk she explained the situation in Southeastern Asia, and the duty of Christians of today to carry the Gospel and do missionary work in those countries.

"We forget how young America is in history," stated Mrs. Thigpen. "East Asia is an old land. America is less than 200 years old. West Europe is 1500 years old, and China 1500 years old at the time of Christ. America has all things people in other worlds look for and long for. God gave us these blessings because he wants us to share with nations of the world. Asians say, 'America is the land of today, Asia is the land of tomorrow'."

After explaining the conditions of Southeastern Asia, Mrs. Thigpen further reviewed the Mission Study book.

Following the business meeting, punch and cookies were served to the group.

Games were played then the bride opened the lovely gifts. Refreshments of bridal cakes, ice cream molds of cupids, bells and rings, salted nuts and coffee were served in the dining room and were enjoyed by the 20 guests present.

After the rehearsal on Feb. 22nd, Mrs. J. Randolph Baker, Aunt of the bride, entertained the bridal couple and their families at a cake-cutting, Wedding cake, punch, salted nuts and mints were served.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held in the Bright Leaf Room of the Goldsboro Hotel Hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Broder. Wedding cake, champagne punch, open-faced sandwiches and ham biscuits were served to the bridal party and families of the bridal couple.

Wedding Dress of Miss Mary Lily Kenan Object of Interest At Flagler Museum

The following story appeared recently in "Palm Beach Notes" written by Leone King in the Palm Beach Post-Times Paper. The story concerns the wedding dress of the former Miss Mary Lily Kenan of Kenansville who married Flagler in 1901. Editor's Note:

By Leone King
With the turn-out of Palm Beach pioneers and early-timers in areas adjacent to the resort Saturday when the Henry Morrison Flagler Museum celebrated the third anniversary of its founding, it was a natural outcome that many had tales to tell of "palmier Palm Beach days."

Tour-aram Program Held In Wallace

The first session of the Tour-aram program which started in Wallace February 19 for the people who are interested in furthering the economy through the development of the historic, recreational, and travel aspects of Duplin and Pender Counties was attended by a large and enthusiastic group. They indicated that they are ready to join in an all-out effort to develop things that will interest the travelers in their respective counties and join with the other counties in the SENCLand area in a total program.

"Like ripples spreading from a pebble dropped in a pond we hope the information from these tour-aram sessions will lead to action among people of our area," declared Glenn Tucker of Carolina Beach at the first of the new tour-aram sessions here Tuesday night.

Tucker, who is chairman of the SENCLand Travel Council, stressed the value of the sessions in stirring community leaders of SENCLand into realization of the travel industry potential to everyone in this area.

Of those attending the meeting were the mayors of Wallace, Melvin Cording, and Burgaw, W. M. Baker. R. L. Butler, president of the Wallace Chamber of Commerce, George Cowan, Beulaville, vice president of the Duplin County unit of SENCLand Development; W. G. Sullivan, Oak Ridge community, a Duplin County community development leader, Mrs. H. P. Bell of Currie Mrs. Stout, president of the confederate woman's club of Duplin County, and other leaders of community activities from Duplin and Pender counties attended and were recognized.

Carl Whitehurst, assistant dir. of distributive education in the state, showed a film on the general travel and recreation industry situation in the state.

W. K. Dorsey, director of distributive education of Wilmington College, was praised for his enthusiasm in developing the plan of the tour-aram sessions.

Dorsey declared that the travel industry benefits every taxpayer in the state through the money it brings to the state in taxes.

He explained that the tour-aram program is designed to stir interest in the travel and recreational potential of SENCLand as well as the industrial and agricultural potential.

Tucker pointed to the extreme need for improving facilities in the area to meet the demand of the traveling public for every improved accommodations.

He pointed to the need for developing the resources of the area for this industry, stressing the immense water resources.

He emphasized the need for selling the public on "what we have here. This is a job each of us must do."

"Travel creates business in all fields," he stated. "To meet the needs of the traveler and vacationer as well as the retired person settling in this area, the services of merchants, builders, professional people, farmers, service station people, restaurant people, sports supply people, to name a few, are required."

Tucker pointed to the slow economic growth of the area as compared with that of the Piedmont in emphasizing the importance of developing the natural resources at hand for building the travel and recreational industry.

He explained the idea prevalent among many persons that as long as we have the water resources the tourists will come in fallacious.

"All you have to do is look at the advertising and promotion work of other areas to see why the tourist doesn't stay here longer and why more tourists do not come here," he added.

Dorsey closed the first session with a film strip on the Battleship North Carolina which is currently the "hottest" tourist attraction in the SENCLand, according to Tucker.

Don't Take a Tumble!

Cluttered walkways and driveways can cause serious injuries. See that bicycles and other objects are kept in their proper places!

HOMEOWNERS CAN PREVENT MANY INJURY ACCIDENTS!

Falls are one of the leading causes of injury around the home according to the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies.

Falls, coupled with accidents caused by contact with sharp or hot objects, account for about 55 per cent of all home injuries.

Homeowners are urged to keep stairs, hallways, walkways and driveways clear of children's toys, cleaning materials, gardening tools and other objects that may cause a person to stumble.

One lady who remembers, but asks to remain nameless, says "The glass-enclosed closet where Mrs. Flagler's wardrobe was hung was the size of an average efficiency apartment today."

And she's quite right, although there is actually no reason to be especially impressed by the fact since there are wardrobe areas in other Palm Beach homes today that actually dwarf that installed in Whitehall for Mrs. Flagler.

What we found ever so much more interesting when talking to people at Saturday observance was a story that a pioneer recalled concerning a time when "Mr. Flagler,
