

Low Quality Tobacco To Be Sharply Discounted

The United States Department of Agriculture has announced that low quality tobacco will be sharply discounted. Grade standards and price supports are now in the process of being revised.

The Department emphasized that quality tobacco will be supported at a high price and poor tobacco at a low price. Farmers are urged to use approved varieties and follow sound cultural practices. The farmer who tries to produce a big crop and gets poor quality will find his income is cut sharply next summer.

The announcement urged farmers to pay special attention to cultural practices that have an important effect on the quality of tobacco:

- (1) Improper use of fertilizer
- (2) Close spacing of plants
- (3) Excessive irrigation
- (4) Harvesting immature tobacco
- (5) Use of chemicals to control suckers

When these cultural practices are properly followed, any or all of them could harm the tobacco. Particular care must be used when applying chemicals for sucker control.

It was announced that M-30 is only one of a number of factors that affect the quality of tobacco. If M-30 adversely affects U. S. retail grades for the tobacco, it will automatically discount itself by a lower support price. The responsibility to produce quality tobacco rests with each farmer.

I have advised you many times concerning the importance of good seed—free, true to variety name and type, and with built-in vigor resulting from careful breeding, good growing conditions and handling. Cheap seed is always the most expensive. Buy the best, from a reliable dealer.

The same applies to nursery stock. And I want to tell you a little about the high caliber of your local nurserymen.

The North Carolina Association of Nurserymen was organized in 1937 on the State College campus and is the oldest organized short course in the School of Agriculture. The 26th annual convention was held on the campus in January with approximately 150 nurserymen in attendance. We started with about 20 in 1919.

I had a part in helping the movement gain momentum and am some times called "the daddy of the organization." I claim no credit for this, however, because it was group effort that has resulted in significant progress through the years.

For a number of years the nurserymen have been conscious of the need for better grades and standards to regulate the sale of ornamental plants. The Association has adopted a set of grades which you should know about because it will guide you when buying what you want.

The grade designation is "NORGAN," which is an abbreviation of the name North Carolina Association of Nurserymen.

Suppose you want to buy a Burford's Chinese holly (Ilex cornuta burfordii). You have four grades to select from: NORGAN Fancy, NORGAN No. 1, NORGAN No. 2 and NORGAN No. 3.

Let's see now what these grades mean. We will assume that all of the plants are from 24-30 inches in height. Fancy. An exceptionally healthy, vigorous plant which is well shaped, heavily branched and densely foliated. No. 1. A healthy, vigorous plant which is well shaped, well branched and well foliated. Note the choice and use of words of we go down the line. No. 2. A healthy, vigorous, plant which is fairly well shaped, with fair branching and fair foliage. No. 3. Any plant not meeting the requirements as outlined for the other grades.

Before these grades were established, a Burford plant which was rated in the 24-30 inch class, did not mean much because it could have been catalogued for sale in any one of the four grades I have discussed.

The establishment of these grades is good for the trade and the nurseryman and is one of the most progressive steps the nursery industry in North Carolina has ever taken.

CARELESS SMOKERS, APPLIANCES, USEERS, CAUSE A LOT OF FIRES

If there are smokers in your house, be sure all cigarettes are extinguished before you go to bed, says the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Keep plenty of ashtrays in every room. Be sure, too, that electrical appliances, such as irons, are turned off. Nearly one-fourth of all fires are caused by matches and smoking, and another 20.4 per cent are the result of misuse of electrical equipment.

Beef And Pork Head List of Plentiful

Along with warmer weather and spring flowers, homemakers can look forward to an abundance of red meats. Top quality beef and pork are plentiful now and the supply will continue through May.

Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says other foods which will continue on the plentiful list are carrots, canned freestone peaches, canned ripe olives, milk and milk products.

Homemakers who are always looking for good meat buys, will be glad to learn that beef supplies will be even heavier the second quarter of the year than the first. As much as 10 to 15 per cent more fed beef will be marketed in April, May, and June of this year than during the same period last year.

DAVID N. HENDERSON

Washing Ton Report . . . . . ???

O considerable interest in Eastern North Carolina is the effort now being made by both State and Federal authorities to take firm and positive action to get under way a project to stabilize North Carolina's historic Outer Banks.

Stretching from the Virginia line to Bogue Inlet in Onslow County, the Outer Banks since the discovery of America have served as a buffer strip to hold off the relentless sea and surf from North Carolina's inland waters and shores, but time has taken its toll.

Vegetation which once helped stabilize the Banks is gone. In spots, natural dunes have been leveled by real estate developers. Hurricanes and gales have buffeted the Banks until in some areas new inlets have been opened and in others, dunes have been flattened to dangerously low levels. It is apparent to those who have watched the deterioration of the Banks over the past two or three decades that unless something is done in the near future, within a few more decades they will disappear completely.

In order to save the Banks; to preserve their historic and scenic value for all Americans, and to insure to our coastal area their vital commercial and safety value, I have endorsed a proposal to establish as a Seashore National Park the stretch of the Banks from Cape Hatteras to Cape Lookout. This plan involves State-Federal cooperation; financially and otherwise. It is obvious that an area cannot simultaneously be both private and public property and the development of Core Banks as a National Park will, of necessity, restrict private ownership.

I believe, however, that the matter can be resolved in such a way that private property rights are protected and that no owner will be unnecessarily or unjustly required to relinquish his rights.

What Questions Vets Are Asking

Here are authoritative answers by the Veterans Administration to questions from former servicemen and their families:

Q-My husband, a veteran of World War II, died recently. Am I, or my children, eligible for a GI home loan?

A-If your husband died of a service-connected disability and you have not remarried you are eligible, but children of deceased veterans are NOT eligible for GI loans.

Q-What is the oldest group of veterans now that Civil War veterans are all gone?

A-There are 26 surviving veterans of the Indian Wars and most are in their nineties.

Q-I have a chronic skin disease. As a veteran am I entitled to treatment at a Veterans Administration outpatient clinic?

A-To be eligible for VA outpatient care a veteran must have a service-connected disability or must be receiving vocational rehabilitation training and needs treatment to avoid interrupting his training, or be a veteran of the Spanish American War. Also, veterans applying for compensation or pension benefits or for insurance may have a medical examination at a VA outpatient clinic as may veterans who are seeking to determine the need for hospital care.

Deceased Veterans Eligible Burial National Cemetery

Any deceased veteran of warlike or peacetime service, whose last period of service terminated honorably, is eligible for burial in any national cemetery in which grave space is available. J. D. DeRamus, Manager of the North Carolina VA Regional Office, said today.

The spouse, widow or widower of an eligible veteran may be buried in the same grave or in an adjoining grave if space is available.

A minor child of the veteran may also be buried in a national cemetery in the same grave in which either parent has been interred.

Should the spouse or child die before the veteran, the veteran must sign a paper stating his intention to be buried in the national cemetery before the spouse or child can be buried there.

Mr. DeRamus said at the time of the death of a veteran spouse or child eligible for burial in a national cemetery, the mortician or person responsible for funeral arrangements should request interment directly from the superintendent of the national cemetery.

There is no charge for the gravesite in a national cemetery, or for the opening or closing of the grave therein, Mr. DeRamus said.
