

Farmers Urged Use MH-30 Properly Trial & Error

By Verne H. Reynolds
County Extension Chairman
MH-30 (maleic hydrazide, 30% active) is a growth regulator that is absorbed by the tobacco leaf and moves through the plant to the areas of new cell development. MH-30 inhibits cell division and thus subsequent sucker growth. There appears to be little, if any, effect on cell enlargement, so most tip leaves continue to grow as will partially developed suckers.

2. Use proper equipment
3. Use recommended rate
A. Correct time to apply MH-30
Treatment 1. When most of the plants have begun to shed their first flowers, full to late flower stage, top down to a good size leaf, clean out any existing suckers and treat. OR Treatment 2. Spray MH-30 when plants are in full flower and then within 2 or 4 days top and sucker all plants. OR Treatment 3. Top in early flower stage - wait about a week - apply MH and remove all suckers and late tops.

removed just before or soon after MH-30 is applied.
B. Use proper equipment and use it correctly.
MH-30 can be applied with any type sprayer that will uniformly spray 20 to 50 gallons of liquid per acre. This includes small hand sprayers, mule-drawn sprayers, tractor-drawn and tractor-mounted sprayers. Use fine, mist-type nozzles such as the cone type. Do not use the broad-jet type spray nozzle that sprays several rows at one time.

A very young tot in Kenansville was all questions about her Daddy going to Naval Reserve Camp for two weeks training. She bombarded her Mother with many questions such as "Who is going to build his tent?" Her mother explained that it was a little different, that her Father went for training duty. "Oh", he child exclaimed, "He's going to join the circus!"

This tale was told on a very young married man who has only been married for about a year. So he had better watch out. He and his wife were in Durham and a young lady asked him to move her car for her as it was parked where she could not move it. He very graciously moved her car, and when he got back in his car the girl looked at his wife and said "Thank your father for me!" Snodie, I understand there are some face-lifting doctors around. Ruth.

When MH-30 is used, it should be used discretely. Generally for best results, considering all characteristics studied, the following instructions should be followed carefully.
1. Time application correctly

Treatments	Lbs./A	$/cwt	$/A	%
1	2213	84.00	1418	2.34
2	2172	63.82	1398	2.28
3	2260	66.17	1495	2.68

If plants are irregular and flowering uneven, top all early flowering plants and delay applying MH-30 until the later plants are ready to top. Unless an oil emulsion is used, it will be necessary to hand sucker the earlier topped plants.
Best absorption of MH-30 is obtained under good soil moisture and plant growth conditions. Don't spray wilted plants. Often lack of sucker control is evident when MH-30 is applied to plants that are under stress for moisture.
It is very important for best results that tops and all suckered be
