

WASHINGTON REPORT

from

Your Congressman
DAVID N. HENDERSON

Washington wire services "hive" reporting for months about the "do-nothing" Congress. Columnists have written features about the air-conditioned comfort of Capitol Hill, and cartoonists have pictured the Congressman as a man contentedly behind a desk with high web-covered, unproductive work.

ings, conferences with constituents and Departmental officials; speaking engagements; mail to be handled; telephone calls; and literally dozens of tasks which demand time and effort but which do not make spectacular headlines.

SENATOR ERVIN SAYS

WASHINGTON - Congress has two priority measures before it as it moves into what may be the longest session since the Korean War. These are the tax program, being considered by the House Ways and Means Committee, and the Administration's civil rights proposals, embodied in S. 1731, undergoing hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

President or those to whom he may delegate his authority the unbridled discretion to use almost the entire Federal purse to achieve whatever purposes he might wish in the conduct of human affairs. In his discretion he could coerce states, local communities, or individuals engaged in business into acceding to the wishes of the President in those programs using Federal funds, as to the course of conduct they should pursue in the nebulous and undefined field of discrimination.

The Administration's civil rights bill constitutes the most drastic legislative proposal made in this area of our national life since the Reconstruction Acts of 1867. When all is said and done, the Administration's so-called civil rights bill would empower the President to use virtually all Congressional appropriations which aggregate in the neighborhood of $90 billion a year to bribe or coerce and communities, institutions and individuals engaged in business to comply with his will in respect to racial matters.

Uncle Pete From Chittlin Switch SAYS

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: In case you forgot to mark it on your calendar, we got the big Epkele Decision coming up this month. You will recollect that back in 1961 the boys in the Pentagon discovered the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marines was all gitting their belt buckles made in different colors.

go, and we could expect a decision sometime in July. In the meantime, Senator Harry Byrd announced that all the time the testing has been going on, we been stockpiling the four old type buckles, added a fifth to the stockpiling procedure, and that boys at Natick was also testing two new ones. He now estimates that we got enough belt buckles stockpiled to hold up the pants of ever man, woman, and child in the nation for the next half-century.

Civil Defense Tips Indoor Warning System

From: Duplin Civil Defense Agency A system of attack warning has always been of major concern in Civil Defense. The problem has been how to economically install an attack warning signal inside millions of American homes, schools, factories, and offices.

There has now been developed a small instrument that could be plugged into any standard 110 volt outlet to be left there all the time. This emergency alarm repeater system, designed for use at any location where there is electricity, is called NEAR. It is now approved as a reliable indoor warning system. Before this system can work, it will be necessary for our power companies to install the equipment to activate the NEAR receivers.

Farmers spend more than $25 billion annually for labor and supplies. Homogenized milk was first sold successfully in 1910.

ONE Story can have many points. It can be used to illustrate many truths about life. The story of Cain and Abel is a very old story. A thoughtful person can see in this story how sin gathers seed like an avalanche, moving slowly at first, just like a snowslide, and finally picking up momentum and crashing down like a landslide before long because of sin.

But we must be speaking of the sin of murder. The reader can also see in the story of Cain and Abel that sin leads very little except to break out. How long ago a young man in Virginia murdered three people on one afternoon, all because one of them (the three were one family) had "nagged him" about his work. The brutal young man had no criticism an excuse for murder.

Perhaps Cain thought that a God who would ask questions instead of coming down at once with a curse, must be a weak God. At any rate he makes no defense. His reply is another question, an insolent one: "Am I my brother's keeper?" That was not the point, as Dr. James W. Clarke of Richmond has said. No, Cain was not Abel's keeper, of course not. "Who wants a keeper?" Nobody wants a keeper. But everybody needs a brother. Abel needed a brother, and Cain had not been one.
