Trial & Error

Offset is improving somewhat. However sometimes I feel like Francis Manning Editor of the Williams-ton paper. At a recent Newspaper Press Association someone asked Francis if he had gone Offset. He said, "Yes he had. I am 'off' in my head, and set in my ways." That is about the way we feel part of the time.

Several people have made inquiries about the Sunday School lesson. That is one problem which we are working on now. The Sunday School service that we have been buying is set on 12 ems, which is too wide for our columns in the new paper. We have written to the company and they are working with us on that problem. We hope to get it back in the paper if they can furnish it for us. If we cannot get their service we will try another one.

The Press Association meet in Jacksonville was very fine the past weekend. The Jacksonville Daily News was host for the occasion and they had a fine program planned for everyone. The food was delicious and the programs were most interesting. Lt. Col. Bowser, Commandant of Camp LeJeune, was speaker for the banquet and gave a most informative talk about Camp LeJeune. On Saturday morning we toured the base with Capt. Arnold as guide. The base is so clean and well-kept. It is very beautiful, and with the colorful fall leaves, and the pretty sunshiny morning, it was just beautiful. We only saw a part of the base in our two-hour tour, so you can imagine what a tremendous base it is.

At the Saturday luncheon meet informative talks with slides were presented on Viet Nam.
