minor injuries to plague young-sters are puncture wounds caused by rusty nails, glass splinters and a wide miscel-lany of sharp objects. Although we speak of these as minor we speak of these as minor injuries, they often pose very definite dangers in that they are difficult to clean through-ly, often they do not bleed well, and the threat of tetanus cancet be taken lightly it is cannot be taken lightly. It is not imprudent to seek professional treatment in cases of this nature and, certainly, if fever, pus, or red streaks indicative

OCTOBER 31, 1963

We have been reading some wonderful facts and figures in our local papers lately about our poultry industry and most of them are true.

Nothing better ever happened to the surrounding area than the coming of the commercial poultry industry which we are all a part of; but lets look at this thing, our jobs, from a purely personal standpoint.

Did you ever stop to consider that it takes the total wealth of 2 people to give you your job? That's right, let me explain further.

An average investment in machines, equipment and factory of $20,077 is needed to provide one job in America today. Each American's share of the total wealth of the nation-farms, homes, factories, mines, savings, life insurance, stocks, everything is $9,770.

So , it takes more than the total share in their country of two Americans to equal the capital needed for your job. If you don't use the machines we have bought use them well enough to earn a reasonable profit--then next time there won't be any money to buy machines and things--no machines. no job for you. Think it over.

Yours sincerely,

Dennis W. Ramsey

Mill Spruced Up And Safety Program Inaugurated Under Joe Eason

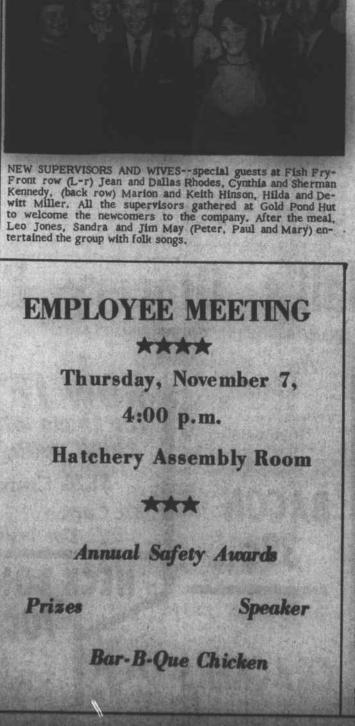

It hasn't been hard for Joe Eason to convert from a field serviceman into a very efficient Mill Superintendent. Joe's first job with the company was in the service department as a serviceman on the North route. Since Joe has been in the mill, his special project has been "cleaning up". This has not been an easy task for his men because it seems they had an unusual amount of breakdowns during the first few months of the new job, Joe describes it as a "nerve racking experience" to have an ele-vator belt broken and a pellet mill broken down at the same mill broken down at the same time. However, it wasn't long before everything was running smoothly and there were smiles on everybody's face. A few changes in working hours gear the men to the machines which increased production and gave some extra time for "Opera-tion Clean Up."

tion Clean Up." During Joe's first months the mill received a fresh coat of paint on the outside, Just recently the crew has finished painting the inside of the mill. Joe gives his men all the credit for the work that has been done in the mill. He states. "If it wasn't for men like Robert Bowen, Hubert Arnett, Jimmy Whaley, Joe Moore, I.J. Lanier, Bobby Sholar, Ernest Flowers, Isalah Sanders and Jimmy Johnson this job of mak-ing feed for all our chickens

ing feed for all our chickens would never be as easy as it is now. These men work to-gether perfectly." The mills safety program, which has been under the capa-ble leadership of the new su-perintendent, involves all the men. Each of the men knows what safety means to their job. They take pride in correcting any safety hazards among their work. A clean plant has help-ed them to become more fire and safety conscious. When hard hats were issued to the men in the mill not

Joe also takes part in activities other than making feed. He and his family are members of the Rose Hill Baptist Church where he teaches an adult Sunday School class.

do. This can be verified by the way they worked together in cleaning out the fat tanks recently. One of the "dirtest" jobs of the company was done without any complaints. Another good point for the mill is their attendance on the Caller for the group. Joe and his wife Theresa and children Patrica and Joe Jr. live in a new home on the Charity Road, FLU SHOTS--We had a day last week that was full of shots-the day all the employees had the opportunity to receive free flu shots. The above photo shows one of the men, Herbert Ramsey, Jr., taking advantage of this protection for the winter. Mrs. Faye Jones gave the shots to the employees.

Isaiah Sanders, John Lanier Sam Lanier, James Trott did some welding in the tank. The men in the garage real-ly showed off their work in the frying pan they made for the -Poultry Jubilee.
