Problem Of Poverty Booklet

Durham, N.C. -- The North Carolina Fund announced today the publication of some 7,000 copies of a booklet defining the programs and policies of the organization recently founded to seek and promote methods of combatting the problem of poverty in the state.

George H. Esser Jr., executive director of The Fund, said that distribution has begun on the 40-page booklet that will serve as a guide to communities in the state wishing to submit proposals for Fund assistance in setting up projects to relieve conditions of poverty and related problems.

The publication is being sent free of charge to city, county and state governmental officials, civic leaders and the press.

Earlier this month The Fund Board of Directors announced that comprehensive community experimental projects will be supported in about ten areas of the state. Their selection will begin about February 1, 1964.

The inexpensively designed booklet is divided into five major sections: (1) A discussion of the problem of poverty in the state; (2) General Fund policies; (3) Guidelines for preparation of Community Proposals; (4) Questions to use as a guide in defining problems of poverty in the community; and (5) Suggested types of experiments for comprehensive community projects.

The development and support of community projects to tackle problems in education, employment, housing, health, welfare, environment and other forces contributing to the state's cycle of poverty is a primary interest of The North Carolina Fund.

The booklet, Esser said, will clarify the Fund's purpose and scope, and act as a guideline to communities wishing to apply for Fund assistance.

for those buildings, and bids opened in the near future.

This fall's enrollment has registered 42% of the students enrolled as coming from Duplin and Wayne County. "Mount Olive College has served eastern North Carolina with distinction," stated Mr. Jones, "and it makes possible the enrollment of students within commuting distance of their homes."

"Junior College's today," continued Mr. Jones, "serve an extremely valuable purpose since they provide the answer to the crowded conditions found in many of our universities and colleges."

Recent statistics indicate that approximately 58% of students graduating from our high schools today fall to obtain a higher education. "With the many complexities that life presents today," stated Mr. Jones, "it is mandatory that our youths be given the opportunity of training and education to better equip them in meeting life's many challenges."

"We feel that Mount Olive College will help meet this need as it anticipates a substantial increase in enrollment after the expansion program gets underway this year," remarked Mr. Jones.

Following the closing prayer the group enjoyed lunch served in the Church Annex. Mrs. E.C. Sheffield, Jr. was luncheon-chairman. Her committee served barbecued chicken, creamed corn, butter-beans, tomato aspic, hot buttered rolls, coffee and cake.
