Corn Batter Cakes

Here's an extra special Sunday brunch menu — crisp hot Corn Batter Cakes with Cheese-Ham Sauce, crisp relishes and beverage. The family will be delighted with this tasty start in the morning that's both breakfast and lunch combined.

Enriched self-rising corn meal really simplifies batter cake preparation. The baking powder and salt are already added to the corn meal, so all you need add is an egg, shortening and milk for perfect batter cakes every time.

Everyone is sure to ask for seconds of Corn Batter Cakes and with good reason. Besides being good eating, this brunch meal is outstandingly nutritious. The enriched self-rising corn meal alone is an excellent source of calcium, iron and three essential B-vitamins — thiamine, riboflavin and niacin.

CORN BATTER CAKES

Cheese-Ham Sauce	Corn Batter Cakes
1/4 cup butter or margarine	1 egg, beaten
1/4 cup enriched self-rising flour	3 tablespoons melted shortening or oil
1/4 teaspoon pepper	3/4 to 1 cup milk
2 cups milk	1 cup enriched self-rising corn meal
2 cups cubed cooked ham
1 cup shredded sharp cheese

Melt butter or margarine in top of double boiler. Blend in flour and pepper. Add milk gradually and cook until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Add cheese and ham, stirring until cheese is melted. In separate bowl, combine egg, shortening or oil and milk. Add corn meal and mix only until blended. Pour about 1/4 cup of batter for each batter cake onto lightly greased griddle. Bake until golden brown. Serve hot topped with Cheese-Ham Sauce. Makes 8 to 10 batter cakes (about 4 servings).

Health and Safety Tips

From The American Medical Association

HOME CARE O FSICK
 Someone sick in your household

Most people who get sick are cared for at home. Only a comparative few become ill enough to require hospitalization. Almost everyone at some time is required to care for a sick friend or relative. Usually care is required for only a day or two, perhaps a week. Sometimes a chronic, long-term illness is involved.

Do you know how to care for someone who is sick?

There are two primary points to remember — Keep clean and keep cheerful.

Sanitation is highly important around the sick room. The amateur nurse must remember to wash his or her hands often. Clothing should be laundered frequently and thoroughly. Used towels and cloths should be handled carefully.

The sick person needs a cheerful nurse to help the invalid keep up his morale while getting well. A long, solemn face won't be very good for the patient.

Equally important is a third point — Don't try to diagnose and prescribe. The attendant should obtain careful orders from the doctor, especially with regard to medications.

Sometimes cold packs relieve discomfort, sometimes hot packs are better. Let the doctor decide. Write down his instructions for care and for giving medicines, to avoid error.

Rearrange your household so that the patient has a room to himself, if at all possible. The room should be thoroughly cleaned, and then kept clean and neat.
