Monk Receives Plaque At Banquet; Others Get Leadership Awards

A prominent Duplin County farmer and business man was feted as "Citizen of the Year" at the Extension Office auditorium last night (Tuesday) in Kenansville.

Ed Dudley Monk of Rt. 1, Magnolia was honored in a special awards night program. Monk was selected on the basis of his leadership role in community and county projects, community organizations such as 4-H, scouting, school church, civic and fraternal organizations.

Leadership awards also went to Fitchugh Newton of Wallace, Mrs. Elberta Brunson of Kenansville, Mrs. Edna Wallace and Mrs. Davetta Herring of Wallace, and Windsor Johnson, Principal of the Rose Hill Elementary School in Rose Hill, N. C.

J. A. Spaulding, Extension District Agent of the North Eastern District and formerly of the Southeastern District was the guest speaker. Spaulding, urged the award winning leaders to become teachers of new leaders. He pointed out that the awards were not the end in itself but an awakening to the immensity of the job ahead. He told the capacity audience to visit in the homes that you usually drive by "Give those who seem without hope a new hope". Explain to them the new opportunities in training the non-farm employment.

He concluded with the challenging comment "Wake up leaders, you don't have it made, the job a head is too big".

The speaker was introduced by Miss Alice L. Chestnutt, Home Economics Agent of Kenansville. Mrs. Mary Pierce of Rose Hill who made the formal presentation presented Mr. Monk an engraved plaque and many gifts, letters and telegrams from friends and associates. Windsor Johnson presided.

Anna Newkirk Received $1,657 Welfare

Mrs. Thelma D. Taylor, Duplin Welfare Director, has disclosed that Anna Newkirk began receiving $41 per month Old Age Assistance payments in February of 1961. These payments rose on occasion to $45 per month. A total of $1,657, has been paid to her.

A Rose Hill physician and Chief of Police Benny Matthews had to remove $6,950 contained in two cloth bags fastened to Anna's clothing before she could be given emergency treatment for a stomach wound from a .22 cal. pistol, after a shooting spree in the Yellow Cut section of Rose Hill recently. It is alleged that she was shot on the porch of her daughter's home by her daughter, Annie Lee Sloan.

The bullet struck in the region of the hip and ranged upward through the intestines. She was removed from the doctor's office to Duplin General Hospital in serious condition, but has now improved somewhat.

Neatly stacked in one bag and sewed were $6,400, thirty-one hundred dollar bills and the balance in twenties. Another cloth bag contained $550 in bills of small denominations. The money was deposited in Waccamaw Bank to her credit. Mrs. Taylor says that at the time of her application for assistance that Anna denied having any property or money or income, except a house and the lot on which it stood. Albert Williams, a caseworker assigned to the county; investigated and a caseworker has checked on her four times according to the records.

Mrs. Taylor says that the law requires a lien on any property the recipient owns or obtains. To give false information in order to become eligible for assistance is a fraud and punishable by a prison sentence and/or fine. This is explained to each applicant for aid.

Solicitors begin litigation whenever there is reason to believe a fraud has been committed.

There are 43,353 persons receiving Old Age Assistance in North Carolina, of which approximately 34% are Negro.

THE MULE WAS SOBER
Deputy Sheriff Blu Quinn came riding through Rose Hill on a cart loaded with sawdust and pulled by a mule. All eyes were upon him, and perplexity turned into bewilderment. Investigation disclosed that Quinn and Chief Matthews had apprehended Page Bryant operating a mule on the highway while intoxicated. Bryant was charged with public drunkenness, and while he was being carted off to jail by Chief Matthews, Deputy Quinn carried the mule and cart to the stable. The mule was cold sober.

MARINE FRIGHTENED
A Rose Hill girl and her Marine husband and boxer dog were visiting the girl's mother recently. At 3 in the morning the new eerie fire siren went off, suggesting supernatural things, the abode of the wicked and end of time. The girl was frightened out of her wits as she, familiar with the old siren, couldn't imagine what the ungodly sound was. She told her sister next morning about her fear.

The sister told her that she would never admit being afraid with a boxer dog in the room as big as a horse and a Marine, known over the world for their courage, gallantry and stout-heartedness.

The husband spoke up saying, "Hell, the Marine was scared and the dog so frightened that, for the first time, he jumped into the bed and howled." The boy said he had served all over the country and never heard such a fuss even during an air raid. The purpose of a siren is to get your attention, and this new one will do just that.

of the Horrells, says that the fire was discovered by another neighbor, Percy B. Tyndall, who was awakened by his dog barking about 2:45 Saturday morning, and who turned in the alarm. The roof of the five room, single story, wood-frame building had caved in when Tyndall reached the burned house and the blaze had reached a point where no one could enter the house. Basden said the walls had fallen in when he reached the home of the Horrells.

Rose Hill Fire Chief Clayton Herring, who responded to the alarm, along with the Rose Hill Rescue Squad, said there was no means of establishing the cause of the blaze at present. Herring said that when they arrived the house was caved in and a mass of flames, with no hope for anyone inside.

The bodies, burned almost beyond recognition, were found in positions indicating the victims were attempting escape from the inferno. Horrell was found lying in a bathtub where he presumably fled to douse the flames of his burning night clothes. Mrs. Horrell and her son were found in the kitchen-dining room area near an exit door. Two other sons of Mrs. Horrell, John Blackburn, 21, and William Blackburn, 16, who lived at home, probably escaped death in that they were visiting relatives on this night.

The Horrell family car, parked near the house, was completely destroyed in the searing heat.

Sampson County Coroner Coleman Carter said that he plans no inquest at this time. Funeral services for the three were held Sunday at 3 p. m. in the Rowan Free Will Baptist Church in Bladen County with the Rev. Vance Ridge officiating. Burial was in the Haw Bluff Cemetery.

Horrell is survived by his father, J. B. Horrell of Ivanhoe; two sisters, Mrs. Friday brothers, Allen Horrell of La-Banhill of Ivanhoe and Mrs. Retha Moore of Wallace; three goon and Lawrence and Alvie Horrell, both of Ivanhoe.

Mrs. Horrell is survived by her mother, Mrs. Sadie Hudson of Atkinson; four daughters, Mrs. Clara Smith of Wake Forest, Mrs. May Spell of Clinton, Mrs. Fay Seagroves of Wilmington and Mrs. Sarah Aaron of Wilmington; three sons, Clayton Blackburn of Smithfield, John and William Blackburn of the home; one sister, Mrs. Lawrence Horrell of Ivanhoe; one brother, Floyd Hudson of Ivanhoe; and 11 grandchildren.

The Blackburn boy is survived by his grandmother, three brothers and four sisters.

Clean Up

rages business to locate in such an advantageous area.

Recently, it was reported that one town out West lost out on the location of an important plant, even though it had some very practical assets, simply because it looked so messy and run-down. Aside from esthetic considerations, the company just did not feel it could get the kind of cooperation from the community or its people that it deemed necessary with such outward evidence of poor habits. The full and wholehearted support by every single citizen of our county for the Clean Up-Paint Up-Fix Up Campaign, I think, cannot fail to pay dividends for all," Mr. Ralford said.

ITEM: For warm weather trips, make a roll-up mattress for the back of the station wagon. Children can nap while the miles fly by. Use slabs of latex foam rubber two inches thick and whatever width you find convenient. Cover in sturdy, washable duck or sailcloth. These car mattresses have many other uses—as tumbling mats for the children, exercise mats for mom and emergency sleeping pads in summer homes or when visitors stay the night.

Presidents or representatives of 8 insurance companies domiciled in Virginia and North Carolina, among the more than 50 companies which are members of the association, attended the luncheon.

Vets Questions

The Veterans Administration will pay $250 or the actual cost of the burial of a deceased veteran, if it is less than that amount. Deceased veterans qualify for this if they (1) separated from wartime service under conditions other than dishonorable; (2) were discharged from peacetime service because of disability; or (3) were receiving or were eligible to receive disability compensation.
