The basic rules of water saf-ety should be well known to ety should be well known to everyone old enough to read; they are repeated each season by health and safety organiza-tions throughout the nation. And yet most drownings occur when someone has violated one of the

These are the fundamentals --Never swim alone: Don't s im-just after eating or when over-ly tired; Don't overestimate your ability and endurance; Swim at protected pools or bea-ches under the supervision of a trained lifeguard; If a boat overturns stay with it and don't try to swim a long distance to shore; Never dive into unknown

Know about artificial respiration and how to apply it. The mouth-to-mouth method is ex-plained in the First Aid Manual of the American Medical Association. It's not very difficult--Start immediately, the victim can survive without oxy gen to the brain for only a few minute . Put the victim on his back, pull the chin well up, make certain the windpipe is clear; Put your mouth over the victim's mouth, pinch shut his nose, and blow hard; Repeat 12 to 15 times per minute; Keep it up until medical held arrives.

Skin diving and SCUBA diving are fine sports that are drawing more enthusiasts each season. Both require special training and knowledge and good physi-cal condition. If you plan to be will know how to do it on that first camping trip. — Sports a diver take a course in underwater survival. And get yourself into good physical training for strong s imming. Water skling is another exhil-
