June Bride Learns ToCook AmericanFood

Vivacious 'Gigi', the petite young bride from Cuba, has the typical beauty of her Spanish ancestors. A delightful accent, combined with a great deal of personality, makes "Gigi" a very interesting con-

Married only two weeks ago to James A. Boyette of War-saw, the former Miss Iris Garcia, better known to her fri-ends as "Gigi", it is only nat-ural that her conversations include the name "Jimmy" most frequently.

"I am trying to learn to cook american food for Jimmy," 'Gigi" explained, "and I have learned to make Coffee, country style steak, pork chops, green beans and spaghetti."

She was justly proud of these accomplishments and explained that the favorite foods in Cuba are much different from those found here. Gigi said that black beans with rice, fresh fish were probably most commonly eaten in her home

"Fried or boiled bananas are real good, she insisted, "and the beans were very black, not like your beans."

Gigi said that the coffee served in Cuba is much different than that served here. It was served demitasse style and is very black and strong, she ex-plained. At breakfast, Cubans are served a large cup of hot milk into which they pour the small cup of black coffee. "We never drank tea in Cuba unless we had an upset sto-mach, Gigi exclaimed, "but I have learned to love your American iced tea."

The ingenius Mrs. Boyette is quickly learning to bake her own cakes and bread and informed us that these were always purchased at a bakery in Cu-

Gigi came to this country four years ago unable to speak fried and boiled bananas, and but two words in English, "hot dog".

"Gigi" Boyette is surprised to find that food does not always end up exactly as the recipe states.

"Since that was all I could say in English, I almost lived on hot dogs for two weeks after arriving in this country, ing for a bandage, she said: Gigi said, and that is why I Further inquiry revealed that she had burned herself have none in my refrigerator rather badly while cooking for

Wheat Program Explained

Wheat farmers in North Carolina have the same bargaining power in selling the 1964 wheat crop that they have had in prior years. In pointing out how the 1964 wheat program operates, Rufus Elks, Jr., Manager, Duplin ASCAC Courty Office electher lin ASCS County Office, siad that it does not affect the relationship between the farmer and the wheat buyer. Supply and de-mand regulates the price of wheat and of course the farmer may sell to the buyer of his choice. Elks said that one difference from last year is the use of marketing certificates. Processors that manufacture flour or other food products are required to purchase domestic certificates valued at 70¢ per bushel on the wheat they use for food products. Exporters are required to purchase export ce-rtificates valued at 25¢ per bushel on wheat that is exported. Certificates are not required on wheat that is not processed for food or exported. Proces-sors of feed or other non-food products do not have to purchase certificates on the wheat they

Farmers that wish to ex-change wheat for flour for their own use may do so. They will be required to sign a certification that the flour they obtain in exchange for wheat will be used on their farm. These certifications that the buyer gets from the farmer are transferrable to the processor. The miller can

In summing up this year's program, Elks said that the two big changes in the 1964 program are the elimination of quotas and the use o marketing certificates. Farmers are free to sell wheat at any time to any buyer without penalities regardless of his acreage. The other change is the requirement that marketing certificates are required of wheat used for food or export. Price support is av-allable to farmers planting within their 1964 wheat allotment. The support rate is 1.45 per bushel basis grade No. 1.
