Glowing Report of Stay In Chile

By: Nancy Ward

Misses Ann Price and Ann Rackley, both of Rose Hill, have just returned from a trip which is and will continue to be one of the most memorable events of their lives. The two girls, a freshman in college and a senior at Wallace-Rose Hill High School, respectively, stayed in private homes as members of the American Youth Exchange in Santiago, Chile, for ten weeks.

Ann Price is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Price and Mrs. Falton Rackley.

Soon after the close of school last year, the girls took a train to Miami where they were sight seeing several days. They then flew in about twenty hours with stopovers in Panama and Lima, Peru, to Santiago. There were fifteen in the group of students from eastern United States who went to Santiago in the American Youth Exchange this year. In Chile they were welcomed by the President of the Santiago chapter of the AYE and then introduced to their foster families and taken to the homes that were to be theirs for the next ten weeks.

When asked about the thing that impressed them about the Chilean people themselves both Ann agreed that they were very friendly and ready to make others feel at home. Their custom of greeting friends is much warmer and more enthusiastic than that of North Americans.

Another very evident difference is the hours kept by Chileans. They eat four times daily; breakfast in the morning, lunch at noon, tea about five in the afternoon, and supper around nine or ten o'clock. This means that the parties of which the girls enthusiastically spoke began around eleven at night and lasted until two or three in the morning. On school nights, the social gatherings were restricted to teas from about five to eight o'clock.

The girls reported that most Chilean girls begin dating when they are fifteen or sixteen years old and date boys who are older, possibly as much as five or six years older.

The country of Chile itself which is located on the western coast of South America is very beautiful. Miss Price said, "I could look out the front window of the home in which I was staying and see the low coastal mountains of Chile and from the back I could see the snow-capped Andes Mountains."

The appearance of the cities is different from that of the cities of the United States. At night gates are pulled down and locked to prevent burglary of the stores. This is not so much because of vicious criminals, the girls pointed out, because actually the criminal rates are much lower in Chile than in the United States, but more to protect the stores from the poor people who so desperately need food. This is a country in which the few rich are very rich and the many poor are extremely poor.

The preliminaries for W-RH's first football game began with a special introductory Night Thursday at the American Legion ball park in Wallace. The 1964 football players and cheerleaders were introduced. The school showed real spirit at the initial pep rally the last ten minutes of school Friday. It was only then that the students realized that football season had really begun.

The Bulldogs ripped through the East Duplin Panthers in a 19-0 victory just as Wallace-Rose Hill fans had predicted. This was just the first in a series of wins which will take the Bulldogs on to a conference championship. Tomorrow night they go the Beaufort to conquer them.

The next day after club day, Wednesday, everyone came to school with a smile on his face, but then it was discovered that it wasn't because all the teachers had been fired. It was only that picture-taking time had come. For the teachers it was only another day to go through having their classes completely disrupted.

Wallace-Rose Hill welcomes back one of its seniors from a real summer vacation. Ann Rackley spent ten weeks of her summer in Santiago, Chile. She really smiles when she speaks of those South American boys and parties.

I've heard some excited talk around school from people who are counting down the days until September 12. That's the Saturday night that the Mighty Blue Notes take up their stand for the season at Faison!!

poor. One major difference in the structure of the cities is the lack of skyscrapers, the girls said. Buildings can not be over twenty five stories high because of the frequent and violent earthquakes Chile experiences. Being females, the girls quite naturally went shopping while in Chile. They found that the stores there are small and quite specialized. One finds no large department stores as are in the United States. There are many apartment buildings as quite a few people live in apartments.

An interesting fact, the girls noted, is that the fire departments, even in the large cities are volunteer and not paid.

The two Anns stated that they thought the South American students to be more ambitious in their studies than those in the United States. Many students take as many as four or five courses outside their school classes because their desire to learn is so great. The schools are not usually coed. Contrary to the system in the United States a high school education is very expensive, but attending college is comparatively cheap. The only criterion for entering a university is the ability of a student to satisfactorily complete the one big college entrance examination. Nothing in the way of grades or mental ability is used as the basis for entering.

The girls went on a cultural tour of Chile while there along with the other visiting AYE students. This tour took them to the city of Concepcion for five days where they visited a paper factory and the largest steel mill in all Chile. In some individual trips the girls saw a match factory in the town of Talca, and a tile and china factory. Some of the main Chilean products are copper, leather, and some of the best wool in the world. Other towns that the girls visited were Valparaiso and Vina del Mar.

In Chile the threat of communism is very real to the people. Ann Price visited a socialist family in Vina del Mar and she said that communists are very much in evidence. The Chilean people were afraid that no matter which way the election went last Friday, whether the Communist or the Christian won, that there would be a revolution. Ann Price's foster parents, as had many others, had laid in a large supply of food, so if there was a revolution, they would not have to go out on the streets to obtain food.

The girls both agreed enthusiastically that they would love to return, especially during the Chilean summer.

WALLACE-ROSE HILL Nonsense And Stuff

By: Nancy Ward

Club day last Tuesday made it seem almost like the first day of school. All day long the halls teemed with the excitement of students trying to decide just which clubs they wanted to join. Then they had the problem of finding where each club was meeting. There's a new group to add to the list of Wallace-Rose Hill's clubs this year: a debating team. I think this is a good addition to our school and I hope the students will enthusiastically support it.

The next day after club day, Wednesday, everyone came to school with a smile on his face, but then it was discovered that it wasn't because all the teachers had been fired. It was only that picture-taking time had come. For the teachers it was only another day to go through having their classes completely disrupted.
