

Health and Safety Tips

From
The American Medical Association

(Tuberculosis)

Tuberculosis still is a serious health problem in the United States.

One hundred thousand Americans are walking the streets today with active infectious tuberculosis who don't know they have it, says Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association.

By the time symptoms appear—fever, weight loss, coughing, and perhaps blood spitting—the disease has reached a point at which control is difficult. Some won't recover; 10,000 victims died from tuberculosis in a recent year, Today's Health reports.

Everyone is susceptible. TB is contracted from someone who has it, mainly by breathing air contaminated with TB germs. These are spread by coughing, sneezing and spitting. Sometimes a person becomes infected when germs enter his mouth from contaminated fingers, food or eating utensils, or from kissing an infected person.

If active tuberculosis is diagnosed, your physician has a choice of a variety of drugs, such as streptomycin and isoniazid, which effectively suppress the germs while the body builds up its own immunity.

Children under five are a "high risk" group because of the frequent and close associations with their parents, relatives, household help and baby sitters, any of whom may be carriers.

Everyone should have an annual check-up in the form of a skin test or chest X-ray. These tests are available free in most areas any time of the year. Local public health officers and the local chapters of the National Tuberculosis Association will direct you to TB detection centers in your area. The skin tests are simple and painless. If one of these indicates TB germs are present, it doesn't necessarily mean the germs are doing damage. It takes an x-ray and sputum test, along with blood and urine studies, to determine accurately whether the bacilli are active.

GARDEN TIME

A regular spraying or dusting program to protect plants from the ravages of insect and disease pests is the best insurance you have against damage.

A good slogan: use the right materials; at the right time; and properly mixed. Do a thorough job of covering all parts of the plant, especially the undersides of the leaves to control sucking insects such as aphids, red spiders and lace bugs.

All insects have a life history or cycle. That is, they undergo changes which may occur in four stages: egg, larva, pupa and adult. Or, in three stages: egg, nymph and adult. The larva and nymph stages are usually the most destructive although the adult stage may also be destructive.

In the case of fungus diseases, it is necessary to keep the plants protected at all times. These diseases, represented by various leaf spots of roses, apples and many other plants, produce spores. These spores germinate and attack the plant tissues. If the leaf is protected by a fungicide, the spores are killed before they have a chance to enter the tissues. Once the diseases gain entrance, they are more difficult to control.

These simple examples should serve to show how important it is to keep your plants protected at all times. Many people seem to think that one or two sprayings during the growing season are all that are necessary. On the contrary, this battle against insects and diseases is never-ending. For this reason it is best to follow a regular spray program for all of your ornamentals, fruits and vegetables.

There are many effective spray chemicals available -- some for sucking insects, others for insects that chew their food and some combination materials which are effective against both types.

Mix all materials according to instructions given on the containers. This will insure proper concentration. Observe safety measures; by not inhaling spray or dust; by washing hands with soap and water; by storing out of reach of children and pets. Observe residue tolerances permitted on vegetable crops by using the different chemicals as recommended.

Your county agent will have a supply of spray calendars for the different crops or can get them for you.

JAMES SPRUNT OFFERS AUTOMOTIVE BODY-FENDER REPAIR

The Body-Fender repairman's earnings are well above that of the average mechanic's. His skilled craftsmanship establishes him as one highly sought after, and his yearly earnings are in the five-digit bracket.

One can acquire these skills through four-year apprenticeship; however, with the training available through the James Sprunt Institute, such long extended apprenticeship is not required; for one may qualify for the Vocational Diploma in Automotive Body-Fender Repair by matriculating and completing the four-quarter curriculum in Automotive Body Repair.

For aspiring young men, the opportunities are great. Investigate at JSI.

JAMES SPRUNT APPROVED FOR VETERANS TRAINING

Eligible veterans will be interested to know that they may further their education at James Sprunt Institute. The announcement comes from Gilmore W. Johnson, State Supervisor for Veterans Education, North Carolina Department of Public Instruction.

Six degree programs in Business, Agricultural, and Special Technology, along with 10 Vocational Diploma Curricula, are available to veterans under Title 38, U.S. Code.

Benefits to full-time students under the veterans program ranges from $100 per month for single veterans through $150 for veterans with two or more dependents.

Veterans should apply early for their Certificate of Eligibility. Information available at the Registrar's Office.
