Flood Control Approved For Rockfish Creek

Congressman David N. Henderson today announced that the Army Corps of Engineers has approved a flood control project on Rockfish Creek in Duplin, Pender and Sampson Counties under authority of Section 205 of the Flood Control Act of 1948.

The project provides for clearing and snagging Rockfish Creek from the mouth of U. S. Highway 17, the construction of a channel along Rockfish Creek from U. S. Highway 17 upstream to County Road 135, the construction of a channel along Doctors Creek from Rockfish Creek to N. C. Highway 41, and the construction of a fish pond and wildlife area for the mitigation of project damages to fish and wildlife resources. The cost is currently estimated at $573,000, of which $480,300 is Federal cost and $92,700 is non-Federal cost, which includes $82,800 as a cash contribution and $9,900 as the estimated cost of rights-of-way and related cost.

When the preconstruction planning has been completed and when local cooperation, including the formation of a drainage district or another legal organization, has been provided, the project will be in the "ready to construct" category eligible to be financed by the Chief of Engineers from funds appropriated annually by the Congress for Section 205 projects.

lina Battleship, which he now serves as vice chairman of the commission. Appointed by former Governor Terry Sanford to the fund raising campaign to bring the Battleship home, he led Duplin County to the No. 1 position of fund raising in the entire state.

He is proud, and justly so, of his Silver Beaver, the highest award a civilian can receive from Boy Scouts of America. This award came only after many long hours spent in developing boys into men.

Presently a member of the official board of the Warsaw Methodist Church and the Warsaw Industrial Council, he was previously chairman of the Warsaw School Board, director of Duplin County Industrial Corporation, and three times president of The Warsaw Rotary Club. He successfully spearheaded drives to raise money for both the new industries located in the area.

Mrs. Thompson is the former Lydia Caviness, and they have two children, Barbara, now Mrs. William C. Edwards of Winston-Salem; and Gene III, a young attorney in Warsaw, and three lovely granddaughters, Lydia, Allison and Ashley Edwards.

ought. Paying the bill and proceeding on his way he had no occasion to use brakes until he realized that an old car had stopped in front of him, giving no visible turning or stopping signal. He depressed the brake lever, which failed to produce stoppage.

In the split-second decision made to protect others, he pulled to the right and might have been gently slowed down by such minor things as a wire fence and small saplings, but he apparently hit the guidewire to a utility pole, throwing him into the tree.

line. They then went to Virginia Beach and enjoyed the sights, girls, and ocean until 10:00 p.m., whereupon all but one car left, the other stayed to pick up the stragglers. By 12:00 p.m. they all had arrived at Camp Lazy-B and set up two tents and the camper. Most of the Explorers were asleep by 3:00 a. m.

On Wednesday, August 19, the Explorers awoke about 7:00 a. m., or earlier and were dared by Mr. Allen to go with him for a swim in the sound, but no one took the dare. They then packed up and prepared to go 20 miles to eat breakfast, for nothing but woods and farms surrounded them. After a meeting to explain the day's itinerary and a prayer, they went to Oceania Village for breakfast. Many of them will remember that deal for clandestine reasons. While in Oceania Village, they went to the Slot-Car Raceway and raced the midjet slot cars. The group then went to Norfolk to the MacArthur Memorial and toured this interesting monument to General Douglas MacArthur.

After eating lunch, they went to the Norfolk Naval Base and toured the USS Ricketts, a guided missile destroyer, and the USS Carp, a submarine. This was one of the most interesting parts of the trip as most of the Explorers had never been on submarines before. There were three bunks in a section, one on top of another about twelve inches apart. Many of the group said they would not want to serve on one as everything and everyone was packed as tight as sardines. The guide said trainees were taken under water in a sub early in their training so that claustrophobia victims could be detected.

The Explorers then left Norfolk for the next campground they planned to camp on near Williamsburg. On the way they went over the Hampton Roads bridge and through the tunnel which was built under the James River and was 105 ft. below sea level at its deepest point. They then went to Chickahominy Park where they were to spend the night and set up camp. The Explorers had planned to go to "The Common Glory," the pageant written by Paul Green, but had trouble finding the outdoor theater in which it was to be held. They finally arrived there about fifteen minutes late and viewed it until it was rained out near its end. After waiting thirty minutes for three late ones, the group rode all over Williamsburg, Jamestown, and eastern Virginia looking for a suitable place to eat, asking three people and getting three wrong directions. They finally stopped at a gas station and the starving group satiated their appetites on buns, crackers, and soft drinks. It was then they found out that a truck stop was only a few blocks down the road. As it was 12:00 a.m. and everyone was filled, they decided not to go to the restaurant. They then went back to Chickahominy and everyone was asleep within the hour.

On Sunday, August 20, the group awoke about 8:30 a.m. and most of them went to eat breakfast at the newly found restaurant, the sleepy heads coming later. After enjoying the meal they went to Williamsburg Information Center, which they toured and viewed a film depicting life in Williamsburg during the Revolutionary War period. Several of them went to the information desk, and as a joke, had our advisor, Mr. Allen, paged through loud speakers all over the building and grounds. They then left the building, toured Williamsburg and William and Mary College briefly by car, and went back to the campsite to pack up and leave for home. They had a meeting to recap what had been accomplished, Short Sunday School lesson and prayer, and then left for home about 1:30 p.m. On the way home they again crossed the James River aboard a 34-car ferry and ate lunch in Stony Creek, Va. They arrived in Warsaw about 7:30 p.m.

The Explorers who enjoyed the trip are: Bob Best, Bill Britt, Mike Bartlette, Ken Brock, Ray Jonson, Dean Lane, Duane Millard, Pat Matthis, Steve Sheffield, Gerald Price, and Benny Wilson. Personally, this was one of the finest trips I have ever

Friday Duplin Day In Raleigh

Mrs. Jack Cooper, Jr. of Rose Hill is Director of Duplin County Day to the North Carolina Museum of Art tomorrow, August 25th. As this copy goes to press there are still seven available seats on the chartered bus that will leave Rose Hill on Friday morning about 8:15. If interested call Mrs. Cooper for a reservation.

Mrs. Cooper has received the following letter from the mayor of Raleigh concerning the trip: Mrs. J. C. Cooper, Jr., Rose Hill, N. C.

I understand that the Director of the museum, Dr. Justin Bier, has declared August 25th, Duplin County Day at the Museum and that you are being extended all the courtesies of the Museum staff, its volunteer docents, and local members of the State Art Society.

This office is arranging for a member of the Mayor's Host Committee to be present when you arrive at the Museum at 10:30 a.m., to have coffee with your group and to extend to them a warm welcome to Raleigh.

We all hope that your day in your capital city will be a happy, instructive and profitable one.

Sincerely yours,
Travis H. Tomlinson, Mayor
