Trial & Error

This has certainly been a week of TRIAL, but I sincerely hope not ERROR. All of us have enjoyed so very much doing the Poultry Edition for Rose Hill and Eastern Carolina. The cooperation from the people of Rose Hill has been wonderful. Rose Hill is a town which is proud of its accomplishments, and well they should be, for when they start to do something, they get it done properly. To the news media and to the advertisers, we say Thank You.

If any of you do not have anything to do Sunday, just look through the paper and see what opportunities are offered you. On Sunday afternoon is the Horse Show in Rose Hill, Open House at Whaley's Rest Home in Kenansville, and several Homecomings at the various churches in the County. There is certainly no excuse for spending a boring or lonely Sunday afternoon. Now if you were a news reporter this week end, you might be praying for an extra Sunday afternoon to rest.

We dropped in at the Baptist Association Meeting in Kenansville at lunch time today. Of course, some of our friends teased us about using a camera as an excuse to get to that beautiful table of food. My only regret is that I had had dinner before I went there and could only eat some nuts. The attendance was wonderful, and the tables were laden with food. Saw quite a number of people whom I hadn't seen in a long time. Just after we left, the local minister, Rev. Lauren A. Sharpe received a notice that he had received an honor in the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry. Since we were in such a bind for time and space this week, we will give you that information later.

Things will surely be quiet

Tobacco Loans Announced By Department Of Agriculture

By: David English

The U. S. Department of Agriculture announced that it is putting into operation an "advance price-support loan program" designed to ease fluctuating tobacco marketing problems. Under the program, tobacco farmers can get loans to hold tobacco off the auction market. The idea is to relieve market congestion, allow sales of some untied tobacco beyond a previously-set marketing limit, and give farmers a chance to look for favorable prices. Here is how the program will work: The grower goes to the local ASCS county office and applies for the loan, which will be handled much like farm storage loans on grain and other commodities.

The county office personnel obtain the appropriate information. An ASCS community committee visits the farm, explains the program to the grower, and inspects the tobacco for quality and estimate of total lbs. If the tobacco is of average quality or better, and the farmer has complied with the acreage allotment, the grower may receive a loan at the rate of 45 cents a pound on the portion of his production which has not been marketed, within 110 per cent of his marketing quota. The tobacco is retained in storage facilities which must be of a type that will retain the quality of the tobacco until it is eventually sold at the warehouse. At the time of sale, the amount of the loan, plus interest at 3 1/2 per cent, is deducted by the warehouse. If the tobacco goes into the price support loan program the Stabilization Corporation will deduct only the principal of the loan. Should the grower secure a loan on a portion of his tobacco, then store more of it later, a second loan may be obtained, up to a season total of 110 per cent of his marketing quota less any quantity already marketed. If the loan is obtained on tobacco in storage during the 95-hour period of marketing untied tobacco for the belt where the farm is located, then that tobacco will be eligible for price-support in untied form; if the loan comes after the untied selling period for the belt where the farm is located, then it must be sold in tied form in order to be eligible for price-

Prospects For Profitable Broiler Production Good

Dr Mills Congratulates Rose Hill Poultry Jubilee of 1967

By: Dr. W. C. Mills, Jr.
In charge Extension Poultry Science, N. C. State University at Raleigh.

The poultry price situation for the past twelve months has been quite discouraging. For the majority of this period broilers have brought less than it cost to grow them. However, the prospects for profitable broiler production in the remaining months of 1967 and into 1968 look good. With the new corn crop coming in at a lower price, we expect the feed cost to produce a pound of broiler meat to be about half a cent less than last year. During the remaining part of 1967 we look for the selling price of broilers to be about 1 1/2¢ to possibly 2¢ higher than last year. This should bring broiler prices to a profitable level.

The Poultry Survey Committee of the American Feed Manufacturing Association is estimating that during the first half of 1967, with the supplies of broilers being about the same to slightly higher than last year. In the past their predictions have been remarkably accurate and I see no reason to doubt their estimate for the remaining part of this year and early 1968.

In view of the low broiler prices which we have experienced for the last twelve months, it is remarkable that broiler contract payments have not been reduced. I believe it is a tribute to the integrators operating in the broiler industry that they have been able to maintain the grower contract payments although they, themselves, have been losing money. To me this demonstrates a degree of maturity that is in the broiler industry and that apparently will continue to be exhibited in the broiler industry in North Carolina.

During the past year we have seen some progress in feeding broilers. We are producing broilers with a slightly better feed conversion although the cost of production has remained

Burlington Industries Announce Plans To Locate In Mount Olive

A twenty acre site, located one mile west of Mount Olive, has been chosen for the location of Burlington Industries in Wayne County. The announcement was made in Mount Olive to municipal and industrial leaders and county officials last Wednesday.

Carl Annas, a manufacturing executive for Burlington, said construction of the 100,000 square foot building would begin this month and should be completed in March or April of next year. Applications for jobs in the new plant will begin early in December.

The firm produces a wide variety of textile items in their 125 plants in this country and abroad, however, the product to be manufactured at the Mount Olive plant was not disclosed with the announcement.

Mr. Annas expressed appreciation for the firms reception in the Mount Olive area, from the people and the county commissioners.

He said the company was seeking no favors, or special privileges. "We want to become good industrial citizens" he said, "and we expect our management, and wage employees to be good citizens also."

The new operation will be run by eight to ten management officials that will move to Wayne County. Other employees will be recruited and trained prior to
