

Your Pumpkin Should Go To The Fair

If anyone thinks he can raise big pumpkins, the Dede Classic Fair at Winston-Salem, N. C., wants to hear from him. For the fourth year the Fair will stage its pumpkin contest, awarding premiums for the largest, smallest, prettiest, best decorated, and the one exhibited by the oldest grower. The judging will be opening day of this year's Fair, Tuesday, October 8. Ornamental gourds will also be judged and awarded premiums.

There is a minimum of $100 awaiting the grower of the largest pumpkin, plus 50 cents for every pound over 100 pounds. If it weighs more than last year's champion, the Fair will pay an additional $1 for each pound over. The 1967 grand champion was a pumpkin to behold. Deep, rich orange in color, it weighed 282 pounds and had a circumference of almost seven feet. Mr. Albert Voss, in charge of arrangements, has free seed available for the asking to those who wish to compete, or you may use your own seed. Entry blanks are required to be in by September 21 and are obtainable from the Fair office, Box 7625, Reynolds Station.

Workshop For Nurses Held In Wilmington

On Thursday, February 22, the Auditorium at the Carolina Power and Light Company Building in Wilmington was the assembling place for a workshop for Public Health and School Nurses on the Conservation of Sight, with emphasis on Glaucoma and Prevention of eye accidents in children. Resource personnel were associated with the N. C. Department of Vocational Rehabilitation and the N. C. Commission for the Blind. The main speaker was Dr. Frederick Butler, Ophthalmologist, of Wilmington. The workshop was sponsored by the Duplin County E.S.E.A. Nurses, under the leadership of Mrs. Rebecca H. Judge, R. N., with the assistance of Mrs. Thelma Blea, District Medical Supervisor of the North Carolina Commission for the Blind.

Participating in the program were: Mr. Frank Hickman, District Director of Vocational Rehabilitation in N. C., who spoke on the activities of Vocational Rehabilitation; Mr. Roland Brantley, with the Rehabilitation Division of the N. C. Commission for the Blind, who told of the functions of his department. Following this, was a film, "Hold Back the Night," on Glaucoma, after which Dr. Butler spoke on Glaucoma and then answered questions. A case study on Glaucoma was then presented.

The film, "The Smartest Kid in Town" was then shown, followed by comments by Dr. Butler on prevention of eye accidents in children.

Among those attending the workshop were: two social workers with the Commission for the Blind, two Field Representatives with the Commission for the Blind, two Public Health Nurses from Onslow County, thirteen Public Health Nurses from New Hanover County, one Licensed Practical Nurse from New Hanover County, eight School nurses from New Hanover County, three N. C. Vo-

Weatherstrip Cuts Down Heat Loss

A window without weatherstripping admits as much air as a hole in the wall the size of a national Rehabilitation personnel, two Commission for the Blind Vocational Rehabilitation personnel, two school nurses from Lenoir County, two school nurses from Duplin County, one school nurse from Clinton City Schools, two school nurses from Sampson County, one registered nurse with head start in Duplin, Pender and Sampson counties, and two nurses aides with head start, and two secretaries with the Commission for the Blind.

A total of forty-eight nurses and resource personnel were in attendance, of a most interesting and informative workshop. Refreshment of coffee and doughnuts were served.

two building blocks. That's the result of tests made to show how lack of weatherstripping or poor weatherstripping allows air infiltration, encourages heat loss and skyrockets fuel bills. Conversely, effective weatherstripping—like that which is factory-applied to stock ponderosa pine window units—was proven to cut infiltration to a minimum and reduce winter heating bills by as much as 24 percent for an average five-room house. In summer, weatherstripped wood windows guard against heat gain and seepage of warm outside air, and allow air conditioners to operate effectively. The stripping also seals out wind-blown dust and prevents drafts, thereby increasing total house comfort and convenience. For maximum year-round protection against heat transmission through windows, heating and cooling experts recommend wood sash—a natural insulator—and insulating glass, as well as good weatherstripping.

If you're wondering about the effectiveness of your present weatherstripping, here's how to test it. Hold a lighted candle near the edge of a window on a windy day. If the flame flick-
