Mr. Wallace Speaks To Rotary Club

Mr. Sam Wallace, Manager of Wallace Turkey Farms located 4 miles west of Wallace, spoke at the Warsaw Rotary Club Meeting on March 28. In commenting on available labor in the area, Mr. Wallace said that he had found an adequate supply of excellent help. He stated that with untrained labor his plant could process 1,300,000 pounds of turkeys per week and as the labor became more skilled that this figure would increase substantially. Mr. Wallace said that the cold storage facility of the plant had a 2,500,000 - pound capacity.

In discussing the operation of Wallace Turkey Farms, Mr. Wallace stated that production was recorded in pounds processed for turkeys due to the wide difference in the size of the birds while chickens were more uniform in size and production records referred to the number of broiles handled. For example, he cited that the toms might weight over 20 pounds while the fryer-roaster might weigh as little as four pounds. Charleston, Atlanta, Jacksonville (Fla.), Philadelphia and New York were mentioned as some of the urban centers to which local turkeys are being shipped.

One encouraging fact given by Mr. Wallace is that the possibility is good of doubling the size of the plant within 3 to 5 years. He said that in this section of North Carolina the climate is good all year long for growing turkeys. Following Mr. Wallace's talk the audience asked several questions pertaining to his plant and the turkey growing business. Visitors introduced by Hospitality Chairman Robert West included Alfred Wells of the Wallace Rotary Club; James Justice of the Jacksonville, N. C. Rotary Club; Lane Taylor of the Federal Aviation Agency, Atlanta; Sam GODWIN, Harold Kornegay; and C. W. Surratt.

Brenda Sanderson Wins World Championship

Brenda Sanderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Sanderson of Beulaville won the World Championship for student Hair Stylists. Brenda is a graduate of East Duplin High School, class of 1967. She won first place over some 90 other student contestants in the 1968 International Beauty Show in New York City last week.

Brenda quietly smiles as though she can't quite believe she did it.

Brenda's teacher-coach Mrs. Esther Buffdin and Baldwin Mitchell, owner of Mitchell's Hair Styling Academy and Brenda's sponsor were there for the occasion.

Mitchell says of his student's winning. "It hasn't happened to my knowledge before in the South - not many times in this country." Brenda was competing against students from England, Germany, Canada, France, Italy, Spain and Japan. She explained, too, that all were there with their coaches and their own practiced versions of the spring trend - the Betty Boo.

Brenda's teacher said that the trend requires a ruffled curl look around the face, a ragged natural neckline and a variation of color.

Her model was Mrs. Charles Stephenson, and she had been practicing on her for around two weeks before her contest performance.

Following winning the contest, the girls' coach, models and Mitchell, jubilant with victory, all went to the Playboy Club to see Chubby Checker, have dinner and celebrate. It was announced over the loud speaker at the club that the world's champion student stylist and her model were in the club.

All in two weeks, Brenda has won the top student honor in her business, was graduated from the academy and starts work at her first job. She began work at Sherrill's Hair Styling on Salisbury Street, Raleigh.

Ninth Birthday
