Library Support Study At Goldsboro

GOLDSBORO - The Legislative Commission to Study Library Support in North Carolina, looking for better ways of financing public libraries, will hold a public hearing in the Wayne County Multi-Purpose Building here Friday (April 5, 1968) at 2 p.m.

State Rep. Thomas E. Strickland of Goldsboro, a member of the commission, said invitations to attend have gone to legislators and county and city officials in a 22-county area.

The commission will welcome appearances by concerned individuals, library trustees and librarians, Strickland said. The hearing will cover the following counties: Carteret, Craven, Duplin, Edgecombe, Franklin, Granville, Greene, Halifax, Harnett, Johnston, Jones, Lenoir, Nash, Onslow, Pamlico, Pitt, Sampson, Vance, Wake, Warren, Wayne and Wilson.

The five-member commission, created by the 1967 General Assembly, will report its findings to the 1969 legislature.

The Goldsboro hearing is the third in a series of five public sessions being held by the commission around the State. The first, at Greensboro in February, attracted more than 120 persons. Some 60 attended the second, at Elizabeth City in March.

Other hearings will be held in Lumberton on April 26 and Asheville on May 17.

Commission members besides Strickland are Senators Mary Faye Brumby of Murphy and Hector MacLean of Lumberton, Rep. Charles W. Phillips of Greensboro, and Chairman David Stick of Kitty Hawk, the appointee of Gov. Dan Moore.

Gardens Ready

Azalea blossoms, the herald of spring the South Carolina's Low country, are bursting in stunning color in Charleston's Famous Gardens.

Japanese magnolias and flowering crabapple add their beauty to a myriad other spring plants and shrubs, while camellias, the finest bloom in many seasons, continue to offer a splendid display.

C. Norwood Hastie, Jr., proprietor of Magnolia Gardens and spokesman for the trio of showplaces, considers prospects for the season the best in years. "If the weather holds, all the gardens should have a record number of visitors," he said. "I can't remember a year when the approach to spring has been more ideal."

Magnolia Gardens lies off Highway 61, the scenic route to Summerville, and just this side of Middleton Place, considered by many to be the finest example of landscaped gardening in the United States. Middleton predates the American Revolution and was 10 years in the building.

The third garden, Cypress, is the property of the municipality of Charleston, situated northwest of the city off Highway 52. It is noted for its display of azaleas and camellias surrounding jet-black lakes from which rise the stately trees that give the garden its name.

Charleston's Famous Gardens, all within easy driving distance of the city, are open each day from 8:00 A.M. to sundown.
