C. W. Dobbins School To Receive Gift of Presidential Reference Libraries

C. W. Dobbins school is one of 1,000 schools in the U.S. and its territories to receive a gift of a "Presidential Reference Library" donated by the Encyclopaedia Britannica on the occasion of its 200th Anniversary during 1968.

Encyclopaedia Britannica announced the bicentennial gift program recently in a ceremony at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington attended by President Lyndon B. Johnson. The gifts were presented in the name of President Johnson by William Benton, Publisher and Chairman of Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc., and U. S. Ambassador to UNESCO, for the Chief Executive's "leadership and continuing contributions to education for all Americans".

In accepting the gifts, President Johnson called the donation a "very generous and farsighted act...placing these Presidential Reference Libraries in these poor schools attended by our poor children." It would help the children, said the President, by giving them "power--power to rise above the arbitrary 'station' in life they were born to."

The books are being distributed to 865 elementary and 335 high school systems, public and private, selected by the U. S. Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education & Welfare, with the advice of a committee of leading American educators. They are being distributed "according to the needs of each school district, parish or unit, including state institutions for the handicapped, neglected delinquent children, migratory worker schools and Indian schools."

Each library contains between 82 and 57 volumes, depending upon the age level, with a formal imprint citing President Johnson's contributions to education. It is dedicated to "The School Children of the U. S. A." Retail value of the 1,000 libraries is estimated at $750,000.

A letter from U. S. Commissioner of Education, Harold Howe II announcing the gift of the library to C. W. Dobbins school said: "This should be an inspiration to your community to supplement these volumes and to build a reference library that will provide children in the area with these most necessary aids to further their education."

Included among the books are the 24-volume Britannica Junior Encyclopaedia, the 10-volume Gateway to the Great Books, the 24-volume Compton's Encyclopaedia, G. & C. Merriam Company's Webster's Third New International Dictionary and other works on science and literature.

N. C. Dairy Farms Get Fewer, Larger

Grade-A dairymen in North Carolina called it quits at the rate of about three per week in 1967.

Total milk production in the state continued to climb slightly, however.

Dr. Frank Sargent, extension dairy specialist at North Carolina State University, said the 147 Grade-A dairymen who went out of business in 1967 represented a slight drop from the number who have quit in most recent years.

The total number of Grade-A dairymen in North Carolina at the end of 1967 was estimated at 2,555. This is about half of the dairymen that the state had in 1954-55.

"Milk prices have increased some during this period," Sargent said, "but production costs have increased at a much faster rate."

Many of the smaller, less efficient producers have fallen by the wayside, and Sargent expects this trend to continue for another 10 years.

Cow numbers have also declined, from about 300,000 in 1954-55 to about 210,000 last year.

Despite a 50 per cent drop in dairymen and a 30 per cent drop in cows, milk production continues to rise in North Carolina.

MOUNT OLIVE -- Duplin County Visitors: Shown above are some of the friends who visited Mount Olive College on Duplin County Day held April 20. The program included a slide film on the College, an information briefing on the College Development Program, remarks by P. B. Ralford, (back row, fourth from right) Director of Development for Duplin County, on the educational and economic value of the College to this area, and a tour of the new campus.

It was the first tour of the new campus for most of the visitors.
