Bank Robbed

(Smith who unwillingly played chauffeur for the lady bandit worked in the Kenansville Bank the first three weeks of July.)

Officials of the Leland branch of Waccamaw Bank and Trust Co. reported the woman bandit escaped with $4,500. John Smith, 28, an employee of the Leland bank, was forced at gunpoint to drive the woman away from the bank in his automobile. He was later released unharmed.

At Leland, William R. Cross, manager of the Waccamaw branch, gave this account of the robbery there:

A young white woman, carefully groomed in a white blouse and green slacks, came into the bank about 2:45 p.m.

The woman, who was about 25 and of slender build, asked to be allowed to fill out papers for a $1,000 loan. After filling out the loan forms, she pulled a small pistol from her purse and told Cross she was holding up the bank.

The woman, who weighed about 110 pounds, ordered Cross to call Smith into the office. She then told Smith to fill a small sack with money from the tellers' cages.

Smith, a trainee in the small loans department, complied with the woman's demands and cautioned the three women tellers on duty to remain quiet.

The woman bandit then ordered Smith to accompany her out of the bank. When they were outside, she ordered Smith to get into his car, parked nearby, and drive her away.

Smith said the woman talked very little as he drove some three or four miles from the bank, where he was put out of the car.

Cross said the woman, believed to be blond, spoke with a heavy accent which to him sounded like German. She wore a pink scarf on her head and was dressed in green slacks, a white blouse and loafers.

The Leland branch opened a few weeks ago. The bank's main office is in Whiteville.

Smith's car was later found abandoned behind a small shopping center about a mile from where he was let out.

Federal, State and local police were searching for the woman and the three Negroes Friday night.

Fun with food

By Mary Reynolds

When Captain Cook discovered the Hawaiian Islands in 1778, he named them the Sandwich Islands after his patron, the Earl of Sandwich. The Earl is also famous for creating one of America's most popular eating forms . . . the sandwich.

Finger Food

The Earl, hating to interrupt a winning streak at the gaming tables, ordered his food served between two slices of bread so his fingers wouldn't be soiled.

Putting Punch into Sandwiches

The Sandwich Islands were renamed the Hawaiian Islands, and the two names suggest one of the happiest food combinations since apple pie and ice cream . . . sandwiches and Hawaiian Punch. This canned punch is a blend of many of the exotic fruits of the islands such as passion fruit, papaya and guava.

For a quick lunch with a party flavor, treat the children to fun-to-eat sandwiches by cutting French bread lengthwise and piling it high with cold meats, cheeses and lettuce and tomato.

For a fun-to-drink punch accompaniment, serve the familiar red punch with a scoop of vanilla ice cream on top. Or, pour new "Taste of Pineapple" flavored punch into freezer trays and float the tasty yellow ice cubes in tall glasses of red punch. For a Hawaiian Soda, put vanilla ice cream in a tall glass, add 2 tablespoons of the frozen punch concentrate in any flavor, fill the glass with sparkling water and stir. All of these punch drinks are sure to turn any lunch into a happy event.
