ASCS

Grazing is now permitted on acres diverted under the cotton, feed grain, and wheat programs. This grazing privilege does not apply to land in the Conservation Reserve or the Cropland Adjustment Program. Harvesting of this acreage, however, is still prohibited on all participating farms for the rest of the year.

Inclusive dates for spring grazing this acreage in North Carolina were January 1, 1968, through April 30, 1968. It may also be grazed during the fall months starting on October 1. Past experience has shown that a good many people in this area are able to make good use of the program provision allowing grazing and yet they can derive other economic benefits of the program under which the land is diverted from production.

Alpha Eta Chapter Meets At Fussells

Cotton Production

The United States cotton crop is estimated at 11,071,000 bales, 128,000 bales less than the September forecast, according to the Crop Reporting Board.

Heavy drought damage in eastern States from North Carolina to Alabama more than offset some improvement in western States. The indicated crop is 49 percent above the 7,455,000 bales produced last year but 21 percent below the 1962-66 average of 13,986,000 bales.

Differences between the October forecasts and final production in the last ten years have averaged 330,000 bales—ranging from 16,000 to 1,113, bales. Nationally, the indicated lint yield per acre is 515 pounds, down 6 pounds from a month earlier. This compares with 447 pounds last year and the average of 500 pounds.

Four states -- North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, and Washington--mark the 79th anniversary of their admission to the Union in November, the National Geographic Society says. North Carolina celebrates its 179th birthday in November.

Death Ruled Natural Cause

Duplin County Coroner Herbert Best Jr. has ruled that Angella Denise Graham colored female, 3 months and 14 days old, died from natural causes.

The Duplin County Sheriff's Department received a call on October 20 that the child was dead. Deputy Glenn Jernigan and Coroner Best investigated.

Best said the mother Shirley Graham of Rt. 2 Beulaville was standing in the road in an "hysterical condition when we arrived".

The body of the child was in bed, well formed and developed, clean and appeared well cared for despite meager circumstances.

Outdoor Recreation

Looking for a place to hunt or fish? Contact a conservation farmer. His wide use of land and water, such as planting wildlife food or building a farm pond, increases wildlife.

You can have lots of fun fishing on your favorite pond or hunting on a nearby farm. Soil and water conservation districts help farmers develop these projects.

Development

Conservation means care for the land. It means green grass and fat cattle. It also means beauty and prosperity for all—rural and urban people alike. . . a better place to live, work, and play . . . and money in the bank.

Soil and water conservation districts help local people protect and improve their natural resources.
