North Carolina Poultry Jubilee Ready

W. J. "Hoot" Gibson

The North Carolina Mutual Hatchery Association met in Goldsboro in August and elected W. J. "Hoot" Gibson, Aycock Farms, Wallace, as president.

About 70 industry men registered to hear Dr. Carey Quarles, director of field services, Indian River Poultry Farm, Lancaster, Pennsylvania, discuss the subject of keeping hatching eggs clean. The Indian River researcher described his research using wire floors for broiler breeders. Quarles seemed to be convinced that that is the direction the industry will be going in the future. He has been able to get significantly better hatches with the wire floors versus litter floors.

Quarles used 1 x 1 wire on frames with 18 inch centers, either in an A or a V shaped floor pattern. He prefers the A type, although it does make it necessary to have two isles in the house, one on each side. Thirty six foot wide houses should be the maximum, he said.

Dr. N. O. Olson, Department of Animal Industry and Veterinary Science, West Virginia University, Morgantown, discussed in detail the problem of Infectious Synovitis in broiler flocks and breeders. A summary of his speech will be carried in the official poultry journal at a later date.

Other officers elected were Billy Holt, Midstate Farms, Staley, N. C. vice president; and C. F. Parrish, Raleigh, secretary-treasurer.

Directors elected were: Claude Shoo, Chick Haven Farms, North Wilkesboro; Ed Howey, Randolph Mills, Franklinville; and Arthur Wooten, Maple Hill.

The group voted to continue their aid to students with a $400 scholarship to the University of North Carolina.

Chick Parrish noted that the organization is now entering its 37th year, starting with an incubator egg capacity of 475,000 and increased to 33,869,388 in 1959.

The new president is a native of Gastonia and is a graduate of North Carolina State College, (NCSC-Raleigh) and before joining Aycock Farms, taught school in Pinehurst and High Point.

A machine gun platoon leader, Gibson served in the U. S. Infantry during World War II and was in the European Theater for approximately eighteen months. Upon separation from the Infantry he entered the Reserve Corp in June 1946 as Captain. During the Korean conflict he served as instructor in the Infantry School at Fort Benning Georgia.

Gibson retired from service in March 1953 and joined Aycock Milling Company with his father-in-law, J. W. Aycock, Sr., and his brother-in-law, J. W. (Jake) Aycock, Jr.

He is married to the former Carley Aycock and they have two children Carolyn Anne of Charleston, S. C. and Billy of the home.

The Gibsons are members of the United Methodist Church and are active in the religious, civic and social life of Wallace. Hoot is an avid sportsman, especially likes football which he follows from the High School level to professional. He also likes to hunt, fish and play golf.

Plans are completed, the frying pan is ready and Saturday is the big day in Rose Hill!

Thousands are expected to munch on chicken, to enjoy the festivities and fun, and to see first-hand eastern North Carolina burgeoning poultry progress.

Main events of the day will take place on the L. B. Bradshaw lot South of Rose Hill on Highway 117.

The frying pan, a huge steel monster, complete with handle, the largest in the world, fifteen feet across, 47 feet around and weighing in at two tons, is ready to fry all the chicken the folks can eat along with potato cakes and slaw.

The pan will be fired with gas from eight sets of tobacco barn burners and will cook 265 chickens at one cooking, using 140 gallons of cooking oil. The chickens will be served piping hot from this vast utensil.

Rose Hillians declare: "It's worth a trip to see the pan. Where else can you see such a pan? Or, so much fried chicken? Or, smell such an agreeable odor as the aroma of thousands of chickens frying in deep fat?"

The Rose Hill Lions Club will do the cooking and they could teach Colonel Sanders a thing or two when it comes to frying chicken.

The Parade, featuring some 20 units will begin promptly at 10:00 A.M. Featured will be Jeanne Swanner who will be Mistress of ceremonies for the day, Pam Zollars-Miss Fayetteville, the North Carolina Poultry Queen, Miss Gayle Sloan and her court, and many other beauties from far and near and floats of all sizes and descriptions. Also featured in the parade will be the Camp Lejeune Military Band and many local bands from High Schools throughout the state.

Horse shoe qualifications will be underway with qualifiers going on to compete for the championship.

Judging in the cake baking contest will get underway with winners to be announced. The cakes will be judged on the general appearance, shape, size and icing. All cakes will be sold to the highest bidder and all proceeds donated to the Retarded Childrens Fund.

Romes Rides of Dillon South Carolina will be set up on the Jubilee lot with rides of all descriptions available.

The exhibits tent will be available showing the latest in poultry equipment and products for the interest and inspection of poultry producers and the public. Representatives will be present to explain each feature and to answer questions.

The Honorable Ben Harrell, the industrious Mayor, will preside over the introductions of the dignitaries which will include Poultry Queen, contestants and other visiting Queens, Representative Hugh W. Johnson, Congressman David Henderson, Commissioner of Agriculture James Graham and legislator John Burney. Also the State President of the North Carolina Jaycees Mr. Jim Ollis of Laurinburg will speak.

The Swingmasters will stage a country and western show for the entertainment of all and admission will be FREE!

There will be a military Band Concert by the Seymour Johnson Air Force Band.

To cap it all off, there will be a dance at the Rockfish Country Club for couples only at 9:00 PM Saturday featuring the Ballistics. Tickets are limited at $6.00 and must be bought in advance from Henry Warren at Waccamaw Bank in Rose Hill or from any Rose Hill Jaycee.

There will be plenty of parking in the jubilee lot so come one, come all to the North Carolina Poultry Jubilee Saturday, October 4, in Rose Hill.

You Should Substitute Eggs

by Snodde B. Wilson Agricultural Extension Agent

Did you know that eggs can substitute for meat? A person can be well fed at low cost. Having meatless meals is not new but it is one way of holding down the cost of living.

Here are some reasons for substituting eggs for meat: Eggs are a wonderful food. They are delicious and nutritious.

Eggs rank in first place as a protein food. They are tops in quality and the protein is complete.

The amino acids are in good proportion to each other. This is one reason why eggs help build and maintain strong bodies.

Eggs are low in cost. Two eggs only cost a dime when the price is 80¢ a dozen.

Eggs are a good source of vitamins except vitamin C. Also, they are a rich source of minerals, including iron and phosphorus which are essential for building strong bones and teeth.

Eggs are one of our most important foods. Their high nutritional value, versatility in cooking, and easy to digest makes eggs unique among foods.

Why not serve eggs often and you will find they are a good meat substitute. Using eggs in breads, salads, soups, cakes, pies and other foods adds to the variety of meatless meals. Eggs may be served in hundreds of ways for the morning, noon or night meals.
