More Storage Needed In Duplin County

In 1972, Duplin farmers planted 44,700 acres of corn and 40,500 acres of soybeans. Only a small percent of this production could be stored on the farm, and no commercial storage was available in the county. Last Fall corn was selling for about $1.18 per bushel and soybeans at about $3.20 per bushel. This Spring corn is bringing about $1.70 per bushel and soybeans about $6.50 per bushel. These statistics indicate that if farmers are to realize the most profit from their corn and beans, they must provide for storage on their farms.

Commodity Credit Corporation, through the ASCS office, will make loans to farmers needing storage to take advantage of price supports on beans and corn they produce. The needed storage is the sum of the acreage planned or to be planted of each applicable commodity multiplied by the estimated yield. The sum thus obtained, minus the existing storage, is the applicant's needed storage. (A) Soybeans, oats, and rye - all acreage planted can be included. (B) Corn, grain sorghum, barley, and wheat can be included only if the farm earned payment or will earn a payment under the Set-Aside Program.

Loans are for a period of
