Many people have asked what can a Chamber of Commerce do for Kenansville. The answer is not a simple one. The best way to answer all questions is to tell what a Chamber is and what it does.

A Chamber of Commerce is an action agency designed to meet community needs. It is a voluntary organization of individuals and businesses who band together to advance the commercial, financial, industrial and civic interests of a community. It is a civic clearinghouse, a public relations counselor, and information bureau, and a research and promotion bureau.

The organization is run by a Board of Directors, elected by the Chamber's members. The Board, serving without pay, sets the policies for the Chamber. The variety of a Chamber's activities is virtually unlimited, depending on community needs and the desire and ability of the Chamber to meet those needs. Its overall mission of community development is determined by its goals and planned programs.

Action groups - which may be called councils, task forces, or committees - are the backbone of a Chamber of Commerce. They are the units that accomplish the organization's goals and objectives. The needs of the community and policies of the Chamber determine the kinds and number of these action groups.

Financed on a voluntary basis, a Chamber's expenses are apportioned among its members, consisting of individuals and businesses. Chamber membership is an investment in the present and future of the individual's and the community's welfare.

Any individual or business sharing a common interest in the improvement of the Kenansville Area community is eligible for membership in the new Kenansville Area Chamber of Commerce.
