

Federal Programs In Duplin County Elementary Schools

Federal programs in Duplin County continue to offer supplemental help to a large number of children attending the nine elementary schools. These Federal programs are funded from two sources - ESEA (Elementary and Secondary Education Act) Title I and ESEA Migrant.

The ESEA Title I program offers supplemental help to children in grades one through six who need extra help in reading. Three different programs are provided to assist children at different ages and grade levels according to their individual needs. Children in grade one may receive help through either a readiness or tutorial program, while children in grade two are provided tutorial assistance. Reading labs provide services for children in grades three through six.

Approximately 220 students in grade one receive a small group and/or individual instruction in the eight schools with a first grade. Fourteen aides work very closely with the classroom teachers as they help provide the supplemental service needed by the student as the school strives to raise that student's level of achievement to that appropriate for a child his age. The materials used include the basic readiness materials and the Santa Clara Inventory of Developmental Tasks along with other materials that teachers, supervisors and reading labs have available. The SCIDT is used as a "failure prevention" program in the assessment of young children and as a developmental guide for on-going instruction. A profile chart is kept on each child. The materials used help overcome difficulties in the following areas: motor coordination, visual perception, visual memory, auditory perception, auditory memory, language development and conceptual development.

Twenty-one tutorial aides work with approximately 350 children in grades one and two. These aides work with the individual child for 15 minutes per day providing help in oral reading, comprehension and word analysis. Many of the materials used by the tutorial aide may be the same or almost the same as that used in the regular classroom. Additional materials are used to emphasize comprehension and word analysis skills.

Approximately 1250 students in grades three through six attend supplemental classes in reading in the reading labs. These labs, staffed by 28 teachers and 24 aides, are developed and designed to provide continuous diagnosis of pupil needs and daily prescriptions for learning improvement. One or more of the following diagnostic instruments are used to determine pupil needs (strengths and weaknesses) in the reading process: Informal Reading Inventories, the Fountain Valley Teacher Support System, "Holtzman System Approach to Reading, Cooper-McGuire Word Analysis Diagnostic Test, and McGuire-Jumpus Comprehension Diagnostic Test.

The laboratories are designed for high concentration in the improvement of specific reading skill disabilities. Each pupil's daily prescription includes two or more activities designed to improve reading instructional level, vocabulary and comprehension specific skill deficiencies. Pupil prescriptions include remedial, correcting, and/or reinforcing on-going basal skills.

Students are released from their classroom at definite times for approximately 30 minutes of daily instruction with a special reading teacher and aide. Groups are composed of ten or fewer pupils. The teacher and aide work with approximately 50 pupils during the course of a day. Special reading teachers and classroom teachers are encouraged to work closely with each other to identify specific needs that can be met through individualized instruction in the lab utilizing a variety of instructional materials. Individualizing or personalizing instruction receives the main focus of attention for each individual pupil according to his diagnosis. Reading lab teachers observe, diagnose and provide teaching strategies and techniques in the following categories of each pupil's major strengths and weaknesses of the diagnosis - skills, interest, abilities, motivation, rate of learning, self-discipline, problem-solving ability, degree of retention and prognosis for moving ahead in his/her diagnosis.

Programs and materials are provided in the labs that capitalize on the revealed strengths and weaknesses of the disabled learners. These are geared to the child's academic level and teachers are free to choose whatever resources they find most effective in meeting the needs of each pupil from a wide range of commercial and teacher-made materials. A cross-index of a wide variety of high interest, low-level materials and equipment designed to develop and reinforce specific skills are available in the labs. Many items of audiovisual equipment, linguistic programs, reading skill kits, interest games, manipulative materials, flash cards, charts and other devices are provided beyond the regular support materials for the severely disabled learner.

Free time is also provided for recreational reading and creative writing.

TAKING ORDERS - From January 20th to 30th, the Girl Scouts and Brownies will be taking orders for Girl Scout cookies to be delivered February 28 to March 13. Shown above are Brownie Beth Guy and Junior Girl Scout Amy Bland selling cookies to Douglas Judge, Kenansville Mayor.

Girl Scout Cookie Sale

What has become an annual American tradition - Girl Scout cookie sales - will begin in Duplin County January 20. Local Girl Scouts will call on friends, neighbors and relatives January 20-30 to take orders for the six delicious varieties. They will be delivered February 28 - March 13.

Proceeds from the annual sale are used by local troops for program supplies and projects and by the Girl Scout Council of Coastal Carolina to purchase, develop and maintain Council campsites and property for use by Girl Scouts from the 26 eastern North Carolina counties served by the Council.

Duplin County Girl Scouts are counting on local support to make this a successful sale. If you are not contacted by your favorite Girl Scout, you may order cookies by calling 293-4529.

Mrs. Frankie Tadlock of Warsaw is serving as Duplin County Neighborhood Girl Scout Cookie Sale Chairman. She reminds citizens that "buying Girl Scout cookies is an excellent way to support the Girl Scout organization which means so much to the young girls in our community."

Two From County Agricultural Staff Honored

Two members of the Duplin County Agricultural Extension staff were recognized for long careers with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service in Wrightsville Beach Tuesday, January 17th.

County Extension Chairman Vernon H. Reynolds was honored for 35 years of service in Extension and Agricultural Agent Snodie B. Wilson was recognized for 20 years of service.

A plaque and pin were presented to Reynolds, and a certificate and pin to Wilson by Dr. George Hyatt, Jr., N.C. Agricultural Extension Service Director. The presentations were made at an awards program opening a two-day conference of Extension workers at the Blockade Runner Motel.

on the use of the money. From July, 1976 - October, 1977, the county received $265,065 in anti-recession funds. Most of the money has been used to increase salaries, while part of it has been used to establish new positions. Salary increases took $133,089. A new Deputy Sheriff post was allotted $7,405, a new social worker, $8,015, and a food stamp eligibility specialist, $7,015. An allocation of $40,443 was made to James Sprunt Institute for personnel.

Asked by Commissioner Arliss Albertson why new tax valuations are computed for small townships before larger ones, Tax Supervisor Frank Moore said that businesses in the larger townships often ask for extensions of listing time so they can prepare their income tax figures. The smaller townships with fewer big businesses do not have this problem, he added.

The Board also named W.E. Craft as tax attorney.

Turlington Seeks Seat In Congress

L.T. "Larry" Turlington of Route 3, Dunn, announced his candidacy last week for the Third District Congressional seat.

Turlington will face incumbent Charles Whitley of Mount Olive, who filed last week for re-election. Turlington holds an associate degree in civil engineering technology from Holding Technical Institute, and currently owns and operates Turlington Realty and Land Surveying.

He is married to the former Betty Parrish of Dunn and they have two children, Jevonne, 10, and Larry, Jr., 5.

Turlington, who served four years in the Navy as a sonar technician on a submarine, is a member of the N.C. Board of Realtors and N.C. Society of Surveyors and is a real estate broker.

Turlington said in filing, "The federal government and our elected officials have played games and manipulated our lives in such a way the working people don't have time to sit down and analyze just how much they have lost in the last 20 years."

"Now it takes both members of the family just to survive from payday to payday. God help our children, because they are the ones suffering for our mistakes and it is up to us to see that they have the same opportunities we had, because one day they will be our leaders," he continued.

Whitley, 51, served as administrative aide to Third District Congressman David Henderson of Wallace before defeating Republican Jack Blanchard in 1976 to win his first term. He had won the Democratic nomination over Sanford attorney Jimmy Love.
