Along the Way

By Emily Killeto

Duplin County can be proud of their school system and trust the students have a well-balanced lunch. Parents of the early 1900s students began efforts to provide school children with hot lunches.

The March 14, 1935 issue of THE DUPLIN TIMES records a story of the Rose Hill School Parent-Teacher Association. The PTA campaigned to enlarge the cafeteria and provide hot lunches for students. Members of the PTA, under the leadership of Mrs. W.J. Cavanaugh of Rose Hill enlarged the school cafeteria from one to two large rooms. Tables were added to the expanded cafeteria providing adequate seating for the students. And, the PTA was able to add a new oil stove, sink and indoor plumbing to provide running water inside the kitchen area! A average of 100 students were served daily at the cafeteria while numerous other Rose Hill pupils continued to bring their lunches from home each day.

Students paid in cash or used such items as milk, live chickens, eggs, meat, vegetables and canned foods to barter for their hot meal. However, some students were unable to produce barter items or cash to exchange for a meal and these students received free lunches. The cost to prepare a free lunch was eight cents. Students receiving a free meal were served in one large room and paying students in the second room of the cafeteria.

An average of 45 free lunches were served each day. Mrs. Henry Middleton was Duplin County's school lunchroom supervisor and she worked with the Rose Hill PTA to upgrade the cafeteria and provide hot meals for both the paying and non-paying students.

A Rose Hill school cafeteria menu included a student's choice of: soup with crackers, 5 cents; plate lunch without dessert, 10 cents; plate lunch with dessert, 15 cents; sandwiches, 5 cents; cracker sandwich, 1 cent; cocoa, 5 cents; hot dogs, 5 cents; and hamburgers, 5 cents.
