

New Greenevers Physician Sees Need For Patient Education

usually hundreds of times."

One of the things New York had to offer was Gerald Mulvaney, a native of the West Indies and also a practicing OB-Gyn specialist at Kings County Hospital. The two have been married for over a year, but Mrs. Lister, who retained her maiden name, said they have no plans for a professional partnership.

"We both had basically the same training (Milvaney is a graduate of Boston University), but we emerged two totally different types of physicians," said Ms. Lister. "We both do surgery, but my husband is an excellent surgeon. He's also very dogmatic and aggressive in his program."

Mulvaney chose Goldsboro as the site to open his new office. The couple plans to make their home there at least for the next three years while Ms. Lister serves out her commitment to the Public Health service.

"My husband and I like the eastern part of the state, all except the heat," she said, laughing. "... We may stay here only three years, or ten or twenty. Right now I can only take the future on a year-to-year basis."

THANK YOU NOTE

I want to thank all personnel and doctors for their kind and most thoughtful attention for me during my surgical stay in Duplin General Hospital, especially to Doctor Ammar.

SPEEDWRITING AT JSTC

James Sprunt Technical College has approved for fall quarter a course in Alpha Hand, which is a system of speedwriting based on phonics and longhand symbols. As an alternative to shorthand, it is the perfect system for one who wishes to reach 80-100 words per minute in the shortest possible time.

SETTLING IN - Dr. Dorothy Lister is still in the process of settling into her new office at the Plainview Health Center in Greenevers. Ms. Lister began her practice there only a month ago, moving from a residency at Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn, N.Y. The 30-year-old M.D. will be specializing in obstetrics and gynecology.
