Harding Takes

Position At Duke Library

tion. Ms. Harding stated, "I'm real excited about what I'll be doing. I will be sorting and classifying the papers that are given to the library. It will be almost like reading other people's mail." Ms. Harding stated, "I'm real excited about what I'll be doing. I will be sorting and classifying the papers that are given to the library. It will be almost like reading other people's mail." Ms. Harding became interested in the library field after attending the career development center for displaced homemakers in Greenville. As part of the program, they matched personality traits and abilities with job characteristics. Her best match was with the library field. She liked exacting work without the pressure of immediate deadlines. "The library courses have shown me this is what I want to do." Ms. Harding said. She went on to state that she wishes she had known about the library technology field earlier. Mrs. Arnett, the head of the LMTA program at LCC, states that Ms. Harding was a good student and only wished Ms. Harding could have accepted more than one position. "I have received several other job vacancy announcements from throughout the state. I just don't have enough graduates to fill the positions." Ms. Harding is the daughter of Mrs. Elbert G. Smith of Pink Hill.

Varied Interests To Display At Fair

By Ruth Wells
 Publicity Chairman

Duplin County folks are busy getting plans made, articles finished, and all last minute details taken care of for their entries in the Fair, Oct. 4-9.

Judy Hudson of Warsaw is completing a scene of an old farm couple in counted-cross-stitch.

Annette Blizzard of Kenansville is planning to enter a candlewicking bed spread, time permitting.

Elnora Ivey of Mount Olive will be entering an afghan.

Ollie Thigpen of Beulaville will enter cross-stitch work.

Brian and Renee Hoxie of Calypso are putting together a musical program for entertainment.

Warsaw Garden Club is completing plans for stage and entry decorations.

David Byrd of Rose Hill is grooming his prize Shorthorn heifers to enter in the livestock exhibits.

Rose Hill Jaycees are making plans to bring the World's Largest Frying Pan to the Fair.

Sallie Edgerton of Wallace is doing a beautiful bell pull for exhibit.

School personnel are frantically putting together brick-laying teams to compete in the brick-laying contest.

Agricultural students from throughout the county are sharpening their skills ready to enter the tractor-driving contest.

These and many, many more interesting exhibits await your viewing at the Duplin County Agribusiness Fair.

Meet me at the Fair!

Open Letter

Dear Sir

I wonder if any of your readers can help me?

For several years I have been researching the genealogy of the Shepard Family. Some of my records trace part of this family to the early 1800s.

At the moment, I especially need some information on Riley Shepard who died in 1950 -- about age 90. I believe he was a Primitive Baptist preacher.

Riley Shepard's father was Jacob K. Shepard. I am especially interested in learning who was Riley's mother -- and in learning anything I can about her family.

I would appreciate hearing from anyone who can tell me anything about Riley Shepard -- especially any information on his mother. I shall answer all letters and will be happy to share the information that I have on this branch of the Shepard Family with anyone who is interested in the family history of the Shepards of Duplin and Onslow counties.

Sincerely yours,
 Council T. Jarman
