Mrs. I.J. Sandlin shopped in Myrtle Beach Monday.

Mrs. Russell J. Lanier Sr. has returned to her home at Wrightsville Beach after a few days stay at their home and visiting with her mother, children and other relatives.

Mrs. Marion Edwards, Mrs. Gene Swinson and Mrs. Michael Lanier Christmas shopped in Kinston Friday.

Vallie Oxley was in Clinton and Wallace Monday. W.V. Oxley Jr. accompanied J.D. Cottle to Clinton Saturday.

Peggy Thomas and James Lou Fountain of Jacksonville attended the Stacy Andrews' wedding anniversary celebration at Cedar Fork.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Fountain of Jacksonville spent Sunday with her mother, Peggy Thomas, and other relatives.

dinner. A few had on display arts and crafts that were to be used in their home decoration.

Master of ceremonies was Allen Nethercutt, county commissioner. Welcoming the group was Mrs. Arlene Williams. Scripture and prayer were given by Cicero Lanier. Guest speaker was Rev. Frank Grubbs. A poem was read by Ray Batchelor. The group sang carols. Recognition of volunteers was led by Mrs. Iona Albertson, site manager, and recognition of outstanding citizens was presented by Mrs. Christine Williams, register of deeds. Closing remarks were made by Walter Brown, manager of the Services to the Aged.

Mrs. Williams, in recognizing the outstanding senior citizen said, "All of your lives have been made richer through the love and understanding and fellowship that prevails here. The number one dreaded disease in America today is loneliness. We are told that it is not cancer or heart disease, as bad as they are, but that it is loneliness, and through your association here you are each trying to do something about your own loneliness and trying to share and help the loneliness of others. Someone has said that each time that you touch the lives of some lonely person that you are giving yourself a vaccination to help you ward off your own loneliness. So let's just keep that up."

"Now we are told that a senior is one who has risen above all other classes, so all of you are truly outstanding seniors. The county commissioners decided to ask the people in each site to vote on who they thought were the most outstanding citizens of the year, and you have chosen yours."

"The one we honor today is very active in the Aged and Nutrition program, but she has remained young at heart. She is always ready to help in any capacity where there is a need. Whether it is cleaning tables, serving food, or just washing pots and pans, she is always there. When called on to give a devotion or to perform any other service, she never says ask someone else."

"This outstanding senior citizen was born and reared in Hallsville. She graduated from the Beulaville High School in 1930 and entered Chowan College. In September 1931, she was married and in 1981, she and her husband celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

She is a retired school teacher, having lived and taught school at Brown Mills, N.J. for 23 years. But after retirement, she and her husband moved back to the good life in this area, where she is active in all church activities and where she teaches the women's class in her Baptist Church. She is the daughter of Claude and Emma Bostic Wade. This outstanding senior citizen has two sisters and one brother all living. She and her husband Sidney have one child, Cecil.

And probably their greatest achievement of all is that they have two grandsons and five granddaughters. So I would like to ask Mrs. Margaret Hunter to come forward and receive this award."

Mrs. George Sumner and Minnie Southerland and Syble Maready made a business trip to Jacksonville Friday.

Friday Minnie Southerland and Aimee Joe Southerland accompanied the youth group of Hallsville Baptist Church to Kinston. Dean and Irene Thomas are their leaders.

Ethel Sandlin visited Estelle Batchelor in Kinston on Sunday.
