Marla Ruth Ard, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Norman Ard of Route 1, Pink Hill, and William Craig Ham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ham of 500 Tyree Road, Kinston, were united in marriage on February 12, 1983, at Christian Chapel Free Will Baptist Church at six-thirty in the evening. The Rev. Ed Miles, pastor of the church, led in the opening ceremony. After the bride was given in marriage by her father, the Rev. Norman Ard, he in turn completed the wedding ceremony.

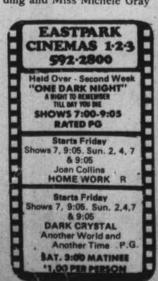

The bride wore her mother's white wedding gown of 26 years ago. It featured a fitted satin bodice with an overlay of lace and rhinestones, having a rounded neckline, accented with her grandmother's antique pearls and long fitted lace sleeves. The soft flowing satin gathered skirt was covered with net tulle which draped in the back with a short train. Her chapellength veil of silk illusion with a blusher and bordered in lace, was attached to her mother's satin and lace covered hat etched with rhinestones. She carried a bouquet attached to a white bride's Bible of miniature white rosebuds accented with stephanotis, greenery and bridal ribbon. The bride chose as her matron of honor Mrs. Deborah Daughty of Kinston, sister of the groom. Her bridesmaids were Miss Sylvia Ard of Stuckey, S.C., aunt of the bride, Mrs. Billie Ard of Kinston, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Regina Hill of Pink Hill, and Miss Leigh Daughty of Kinston. attendants' long dresses were made of soft burgundy crepe designed with threequarter length sleeves and worn with a quilted vest of burgundy and gold accented with a gold belt. They carried off-white laced Victorian fans covered with white pompons, burgundy Rover pons. greenery and ribbon.

The groom chose his father as his best man. His ushers were Mike Ham of Kinston, bother of the groom, Mac Daughty of Kinston, brother-in-law of the groom, Joe Ard of Kinston, brother of the bride, and Todd Ard of Pink Hill, brother of the bride. The ushers wore black tuxedos with tails, white shirts, bow ties and a white boutonniere. The groom wore an all white tuxedo with tails and a white rosebud.

Nuptial music was provided by Ned Bradberry of Goldsboro, pianist, and Richard Blakemoore of Kinston, trumpeteer. The processional for the attendants was "Jesu. Joy of Man's Desiring" by J.S. Bach. As the bride and her father entered the church, the processional was changed to "Trumpet Voluntary." by H. Purcell. The entire wedding party recessed to the "Trumpet Voluntary."

Mrs. Emogene Howard of Deep Run directed the wedding and Miss Michele Gray
