Dedication For Library Sunday

The town of Pink Hill is pleased to announce that the project known as "Library Project" has been completed. The town is pleased to announce a dedication date of Sept. 9 at 3 p.m. The library has been stocked and set up for service. The public is cordially invited to the dedication service and to use and enjoy this fine facility.

The large two-story white frame house on the corner of W. Broadway St. and Pine St. was made available through the generosity of Graham Turner and Mr. and Mrs. T.J. Turner. The building is given to the town of Pink Hill to be used as a library building in honor of T.J. and Graham's mother, Mrs. Etta Jones Turner. The town paid for a portion of the improvements and the library, which will be known as the Etta Jones Turner Memorial Library, will be a branch of the Neuse Regional Area Library and will be under their direction. Pink Hill will own the building and provide this for the library rent free.

It is very fitting the facility be named in honor of one of Pink Hill's loyal citizens and a strong supporter of the community. "Miss Etta," as she was affectionately known, was a lifetime resident of Pink Hill. Born here, she graduated from the James Sprunt Institute in 1906 in Kenansville. Thereafter she taught school in New Hanover County for a few years. She returned to Lenoir County and taught school here. One of the schools where she taught was located near Ervins Crossroads and one near Albrittons. At that time the schools were not consolidated, and each school had its own system and the expenses were borne by a local person or persons.

Miss Etta married T.A. Turner and lived in Pink Hill until her death in 1978. They had three children, Ruth T. Parrott of Kinston, and T.J. and Graham Turner of Pink Hill.

The town of Pink Hill and the surrounding community is grateful to the Turners for their generous contribution to make this project a reality.

One of America's gold medals at the 1984 Olympics may be won with wheels, experts predict. The U.S. cycling team, experts say, has never been in better condition, physically or mentally, thanks to highly sophisticated and effective training.

In addition, they have state-of-the-art Raleigh bikes to ride. At the United States Cycling Team Tech-nic Development Center, located at the Huff Corporation, space-age materials and equipment for building and testing the latest design concepts in competition bicycles have created bikes with wheel hubs and rims narrowed to eliminate wind resistance, spokes redesigned to cut drag, and tires filled with helium. Now that's not just a lot of hot air.

Tar Heel Fine Arts Society Announces 1984-85 Concert Series

The Ink Spots; Thursday, November 8

The Original Ink Spots are one of the most popular attractions of all time. Among their greatest hits were: "If I Didn't Care," "Whispering Grass," "Java Jive," "To Each His Own," "My Prayer," "Do I Worry," and countless others. The internationally famous Ink Spots are a household name. They have appeared many times on the top radio and television shows in the country — and in almost every country around the world. The Ink Spots are legends; they are America's Musical Tradition.

Burlington Boys Choir; Saturday, March 16

The Burlington Boys Choir is the oldest organization of its kind in North Carolina to have been continuously sustained in training and performance. Forty boys between the ages of eight and 14 comprise this choir and come from 15 schools in Burlington and Alamance County. The choir was founded in 1959 by Miss Eva Wiseman, who still directs. Membership is warranted because of exceptional singing voices, high personal academic standards, musical ability and conscientious application to the choir training program. The Burlington Boys Choir compares favorably with that of professional boy choirs and it is the purpose of the choir to maintain a living choral tradition in North Carolina worthy of the community and the state.

Marco Valenti

The Mantovani Orchestra And Marco Valenti Wednesday, January 30

Born to the music he made, Mantovani, a legend in his lifetime, left a legacy of greatness to the orchestra that bears his name. The priceless, original musical scores, the very same ones that fostered his unbelievably successful recording career, are elegantly and effectively presented in concert.

In the almost four years that Marco Valenti has toured with The Liberace Show, his performances have enthralled thousands in concert halls and theatres from North America to Australia. Liberace calls Marco "The New Mario Lanza," and he has indeed moved people with that big, beautiful tenor voice. Together the Mantovani Orchestra and Marco Valenti will touch your heart in "A Tribute to Mario Lanza."

Mitchell Dance Company; Tuesday, April 16

The Ruth Mitchell Dance Company was formed in 1957 by Ruth Mitchell, whose extensive New York background and innovative use of jazz and contemporary music has led the company to critical acclaim and popularity. The company has performed with the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra, the Atlanta Boys Choir, and is known for its eclectic, energetic style. The dancers present a fast-paced professional program that includes works by internationally known choreographers.

The Tar Heel Fine Arts Society has selected four outstanding attractions for the 1984-85 season. They are: The Ink Spots, the Mantovani Orchestra and Marco Valenti in "A Tribute to Mario Lanza," the Burlington Boys Choir, and the Ruth Mitchell Dance Company.

A membership campaign is now underway to support these fine concerts. Further information and season tickets may be obtained from any member of the Tar Heel Fine Arts Society Board of Directors.

The THFAS is unique among cultural organizations in the state because it is county-oriented. Membership is composed of individuals interested in cultural activities who annually support the association. The society has at least one representative from each area of Duplin County.

Season tickets are $12.50 for adults and $5 for students and may be purchased through Oct. 5. All concerts will be held in Kenan Memorial Auditorium, Kenansville, and will begin at 8 p.m. For additional information and tickets, contact any of the officers and directors listed below:
