Tooth Brush Trade-In At Duplin Fair

Need a new toothbrush? Well, your old brush is the price for a new one in the toothbrush exchange at Goshen Medical Center booth this year at the Duplin Agribusiness Fair in Kenansville Oct. 1-6.

Looking at a person's old toothbrush reveals several things, according to Goshen Medical Center dentist William Stoppelbein. He pointed out the old brush can reveal brushing habits.

"The toothbrush trade-in is a drawing card which we hope will get people to come by the booth, William Stoppelbein, D.D.S., M.P.H., said. "A person needs to buy a new toothbrush about every two-four months. And, traditionally, when a new brush is purchased, people have a tendency to buy the cheapest one available, which is not always the best thing, in most cases.

"Looking at the old toothbrush, Goshen Medical Center's staff on hand at the booth can discuss correct brushing techniques and point out the correct type of brush needed by each individual person, Stoppelbein said. "The soft bristle brush is recommended, but each person a type according to his mouth size."

Along with the toothbrush exchange, the Goshen Medical Center fair booth will emphasize the effects of periodontal disease. According to Stoppelbein, periodontal disease is the leading cause for tooth loss among people in this state.

Goshen Medical Center is located in Faison and offers both dental and medical services. Even though the 1984 fair booth will feature dental care, Stoppelbein said medical services information will also be available from staff members at the GMC exhibit.
