JSTC Begins New Programs At W-RH High School

The continuing education department of James Sprunt Technical College will offer five new classes at Wallace-Rose Hill High School as a part of its program expansion made possible by the agreement recently approved by the Duplin County Board of Education. The classes are designed to meet some of the requests expressed by citizens during a telephone survey.

For further information, or to make suggestions for new classes or to pre-register, Wallace residents should call 285-2077.

real estate sales, you must be certified by the N.C. Real Estate Commission. James Sprunt is approved to offer a 42-hour class to certify students to sit for the salesman licensing exam upon completion of this course. This course is the first in a series of four required to obtain a broker's license. Although primarily designed to meet certification requirements, this course may be of interest to those who wish to know more about real estate financing, law, transactions, the Fair Housing Act and more. The class will be taught by Stan Draughon, a Century 21 broker from Warsaw. The class will meet each Tuesday and Thursday night from 7-10 beginning Nov. 8.

CPR Techniques

A 12-hour class on cardiopulmonary resuscitation techniques will be offered on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7-10 beginning Dec. 4. Upon satisfactory completion, students will be awarded a certification as CPR providers by the American Heart Association.

Sewing Class

The continuing education department at James Sprunt Technical College will sponsor a 39-hour class in beginning sewing at Fabrics Plus in Wallace. The class will meet each Monday from 7-10 p.m. beginning Nov. 19.

Cost will be $15. Students will be required to furnish their own materials for the class.

Artist-In-Residence Three Days At E.E. Smith

The Duplin Arts Council is sponsoring more than 50 artist-in-residence programs in county schools this year.

"Arts in the schools is the most important program the Duplin County Arts Council can sponsor," said Kitty Mitchell, artist-in-residence at E.E. Smith School of Kenansville. "If students are not exposed to art in their schools, they may never develop their potential talents." Kitty, a professional artist, worked three days at Smith last week. She is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and has won awards for her cartoons.

"A standard approach here is to teach basic techniques because Duplin's schools have no art teachers," Kitty said. "So I try to cram the basics from my four years of art classes into three days of residence at schools like E.E. Smith."

"And, I usually see more talent than the schools know exists," Kitty explained. "The students bring in pictures they have done outside what we can do in class to show me. And, the things they have done on their own are pretty amazing, especially when I know the students have had no training."

"Without encouragement most students do not develop their artistic talents. And, it is a handicap to deny the development of those abilities," Kitty explained. "The students' intuitive artistic abilities are used daily and especially in careers of clothing design, automobile design and design and building homes."

Students at Smith participated in lectures and demonstrations as part of Kitty's residency. Each day Kitty held five classes. Students were introduced to the primary and secondary colors, drew from the right side of the brain, and sketched with charcoal and ink.

Work completed goes into each student's portfolio and Kitty pointed out many of the art works may be displayed at the local NCNB office in Kenansville.

"The students got right down to work for me," Kitty said. "In the future I hope they will add to their portfolio and as they learn more, the portfolio will show the growth of their talents." Students participating in the program were recommended by their teachers from grades seven, eight and nine at Smith.

Kitty is a former resident of Ocracoke Island where she owned and operated the Southside Studio. Completing the artist-in-residence at Smith, Kitty begins a full-time position in the arts at Rockingham Jr. High School in Rockingham.

Personal Income Tax

There has been a host of changes in federal tax laws during the 1984 year which will impact upon each and every taxpayer. To help the average person understand these changes, Ms. Louise English of H&R Block will teach a 36-hour class on personal income taxes each Tuesday and Thursday night from 7-10 beginning Nov. 20. A variety of new regulations, guidelines and forms will be covered to include the 1040, Schedule A and B for itemizing deductions, Schedule F for farm income and expenses, Schedule C for profit or loss from business or profession, Schedule D for capital gains and losses, Schedule W and SE. Make plans to attend this class as you still have time to reduce your tax liability if you understand the law.

Introduction to Microcomputers

If you are contemplating the purchase of a micro-computer in the near future as a Christmas gift, for home education or entertainment use, or for business applications, but you are unfamiliar with computer terminology and applications, you owe it to yourself to attend this class and find out what the revolution is all about. The class will be instructed by Bob Sullivan of Wilmington.

Two classes will be offered beginning Nov. 8. The class will meet each Tuesday and Thursday from 4-6:30 p.m. for 30 hours. This class has been approved for teacher renewal credit with prior approval from the Board of Education. A textbook is recommended and will cost approximately $8.

Sullivan will also instruct a second class which will meet each Tuesday and Thursday from 7-10 p.m. beginning Nov. 8.
