

Along The Way

By Emily Killete

Many times even the best of plans fail to materialize, no matter how much support backs the project. Last week Along The Way featured the first article written in February of 1935, about plans for a Warsaw Community Center. A second article about the progress of those plans was published March 31, 1935 in the DUPLIN HERALD. Featured this week by Along The Way is the progress report from March.

As we read, we know the project was never funded, but the dedication and support of the people of Warsaw toward the project is outstanding. And, we know that the county never received such a community building until the 1950s when Kenan Auditorium was constructed in Kenansville.

Warsaw Community Center is a Live Project

The subject of a community building for Warsaw is one that is much alive. The proposition is resting easily for the moment, awaiting the outcome of the President's public works program at Washington.

Dr. H.G. Baitty, state engineer for the Public Works Administration, is marking time for the present awaiting a Federal appropriation for the Warsaw project, application for which has been duly filed.

It is believed that no apprehension should be felt over the proposed Warsaw community building at the present time. No discrimination is being aimed at this city's aspirations, because the whole country is in the same boat. As soon as President Roosevelt's big public works bill is finally acted upon in congress and the money ready for distribution action will start immediately.

Warsaw's claims are based on very solid ground when Federal assistance in building a community building is considered. This city needs such an addition to its civic life greatly, and thus far it has not had a brown penny of government money for such public improvements as the President favors.

There seems no reasonable doubt that the matter will work itself out all right. Warsaw is waiting with what patience it can because there is nothing else to do. It is probably a good idea for the people of this city to go right along with their plans for a community center in the firm faith that their cause is a sensible and just one, and one that is feasible and proper. Again, the subject is very much alive.

Today's news about the President's bill, in the daily newspapers is distinctly encouraging.

Even though plans for the community center failed Warsaw announced the location of an American

The new bulk plant of the American Oil Company in the southern edge of town, has been completed and is among the best equipped plants of its kind in this section of the state.

C.D. Burnett is the distributing agent here for the products of the American Oil Company and deliveries are being regularly made with H.F. Lee Jr. in charge of the delivery truck and at the present time also in charge of the plant.

The storage tanks of the new plant have a capacity of 30,000 gallons of gasoline, and another tank will shortly be added. This plant sells and delivers Orange American and Amoco gas, the latter a high test product, and kerosene. In motor oils, Amoco, Penn-Amoco and Artex brands are carried in stock for the trade. All kinds of greases for cars are also on hand.

A very modern feature of this bulk plant is the fact that gas from a railroad car on the siding is pumped directly into the bulk tanks by an electric pump. A Ford V-8 truck of 750 gallon capacity covers the territory and makes deliveries of gas and oil products to the trade.

The new bulk plant, which has for some time been under construction, adds to the growing importance of the south side of town. It shows that there is something going on down there.
