

Along The Way

By Emily Killete

Recently there has been a monument suggested for the Duplin County Courthouse grounds to honor veterans. In other parts of Duplin, monuments stand in honor of past heroes.

The May 9, 1935 issue of the DUPLIN HERALD carried a story about the dedication of the Captain James Outlaw monument. Just a month earlier, April 7, another monument has been dedicated in Duplin in honor of John Grady, the first man to die in the Revolutionary War.

The following story is a reprint of the article about the Outlaw monument dedication.

Eastern North Carolina, were held last Sunday afternoon on the campus of Outlaw's Bridge school. The principal address was delivered by Honorable Albert T. Outlaw, register of deeds of Duplin County of Kenansville. Honorable Henry A. Grady of Clinton, resident judge of the Sixth Judicial District, presided as master of ceremonies. He presented the Rev. Abner H. Outlaw of Elizabeth City for the invocation. Little Miss Elizabeth Jordan Outlaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.H. Outlaw of Mount Olive, unveiled the monument. Honorable R.G. Maxwell of the Outlaw's Bridge community, accepted the monument on behalf of the trustees of the school.

The principal address was replete with much valuable historical data related to the personalities and the historical background associated with the development of Duplin County.

Mr. Outlaw traced the genealogy of the Outlaw family from the earliest accounts in England and followed the family line through to the present day, noting in his carefully prepared paper, the contribution and distinctions of several members of the family. Much of the political, educational and cultural development of the county is intertwined with the members of the Outlaw, Grady, Kornegay, Whitfield, Maxwell and Simmons families, the speaker indicated.

Monuments have been erected to the memory of John Grady and James Outlaw, pioneers in Duplin County, "to remain as a memorial to our forefathers, and as an inspiration to present and future generations."

There was an attendance of more than 500 persons for the unveiling of the monument last Sunday.

Inelement weather prevented the unveiling exercises on the occasion of the dedicational exercises of the John Grady monument on April 7, but the memorial was presented and the historical address made by Judge Henry A. Grady.

It was hoped that the HERALD could publish the entire address of Mr. Outlaw in this week's paper, but due to lack of space it will be impossible to get it in print. The paper makes interesting reading.
