East Central 2-A Football Round-Up

Warsaw: James Kenan marched the length of the field and failed to score, just inches away from a first inside the ten. Clinton took the ball and drove the distance and scored to lead the Dark Horses to a 13-6 ECC win over the Tigers. James Kenan dropped to fourth in the conference and has a "must game this week at White Oak.

Clinton's second score came in the third with Timmy King darting 35 yards to assure the Horses of a hard-fought victory over James Kenan. The Tigers' Bennie Melvin scored their lone touchdown in the third from the ten-yard line.

Clinton travels to Pender in an ECC encounter while James Kenan goes to White Oak down in Onslow County.

Wallace: Wallace-Rose Hill remained unbeaten by stopping White Oak 13-0 in an important ECC game. The Bulldogs and Vikings battled to a 0-0 first half before W-RH drove 66 yards in the third to take the lead with Grey Carter scoring. Ricky Brown scored the Dogs' final TD in the fourth from the one. W-RH out-rushed the Vikings 229-228, and both teams had 12 first downs. White Oak out-passed W-RH 29-4.

Beulaville: Other East Central action saw Pender High down the Panthers of East Duplin 40-8 last Friday night. East Duplin will have their hands full this week as they host the undefeated Bulldogs of Wallace-Rose Hill.

Helms To Speak To NC Tobacco Growers

Senator Jesse Helms and an executive of a leading British cigarette manufacturer are scheduled to be the keynote speakers at the annual meeting of the Tobacco Growers Association of North Carolina.

The meeting will be held Friday, Nov. 8 beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the N.C. State Fairgrounds.

Helms has agreed to speak as long as there is no urgent business in Washington that day. Assuming he can attend, his topic will be the legislative situation for tobacco in Washington and what growers can expect in the coming year.

The second keynote speech will be given by Christopher Castle, senior leaf manager of the English cigarette manufacturer Gallaher, Ltd. He will give his company's opinion on how American tobacco growers can regain lost markets overseas.

Castle's company is one of many in Europe that formerly bought substantial amounts of tobacco in the U.S. but have cut back drastically in recent years.

"We are very happy that we've been able to attract two speakers of this caliber," says T. Carlton Blalock, executive vice president of the Tobacco Growers Association of N.C. "Senator Helms has been in a very crucial position in the process of developing reform legislation over the past year. I'm sure he will have valuable insights to share with our members." Blalock noted that the Association heard Congressman Charles Rose at its February meeting in Raleigh. "We're proud that these two influential legislators have been willing to take the time to share their opinions with us," he says.

The presentation by Castle could prove to be very enlightening, Blalock adds.

"His company, Gallaher, Ltd., is so anxious to get its message across to American growers that it is flying Castle to Raleigh from London for the sole purpose of speaking at our meeting," says Blalock. "That tells me a lot about our potential for increasing overseas sales."

The annual meeting program has been shortened from years past and will end by noon. The meeting will include election of a new slate of directors and adoption of a new set of resolutions.

"The resolutions adopted at last year's meeting were extremely helpful to us this year as we worked for the reform legislation. If you have some specific ideas about policies you think the association out to pursue in the coming year, plan on attending our resolutions hearing on Nov. 7 at 1 p.m. at the Crabtree Ramada Inn in Raleigh or present them during the business session on Nov. 8," says Blalock.
