Mrs. Arrington Resumes Her Maiden Name.

Mrs. Pattie D. B. Arrington has been granted the right to resume her maiden name.

The petition of Mrs. Pattie D. B. Arrington shows:

"That she married W. H. Arrington on the 14th day of January, 1868, living with him eleven years. That in 1879, in the month of June, she entered into an agreement with said W. H. Arrington to give him three thousand dollars for her five children, later she gained a divorce from him on cruel and inhuman treatment, and at the same time was given the care of the five children, which she has supported and raised That at the time of getting a divorce she did not ask that her name be changed, on account of her children; but now that they are all grown, and several married, she does not wish longer to be known by the Arrington name, but is desirous and anxious to have her name changed to her maiden name, and that on the 14th of January, 1905, she will be known as Miss Pattie D. B. Freeman, which was the family name of her father. She therefore prays the court to adjudge and decree in accordance with the provision of Section 3302 of the Code, that her name be changed as aforesaid, and that the decree of the court be entered on the minutes of the term.

"She also asks that all and every case in any court in North Carolina, where she is interested in any case, either plaintiff of defendant, be changed from Mrs. Pattie D. B. Arrington to Miss Pattie D. B. Freeman, and that this petition be docketed with the order signed by the presiding judge of this court, in said counties and courts."

MR. WILSON FAVORS REPEAL.

One of Our Best Young Farmers Writes Sound Sense About the Homestead Law.

January 16th. Correspondence of the Enterprise.

As you asked to hear from your readers regarding the repeal of the Homestead Law, it seems to me that our State has been upholding the dishonest people of the State under the cloak of the Homestead Law long enough, though I don't think that it should be as it was before the Homestead Law was passed, which I think was four dollars. I think that there should be at least twenty-five dollars exemption and it should not affect any debt made prior to the repeal of the said law. I think it is very wrong in a case, for instance, where a poor, but honest man, is compelled to buy a few dollars worth of provisions for a few months, to have to make a mortgage; when, if our law would only say that he must pay for what he buys, he would only have to go to the merchant and tell him what he wanted and the merchant would only have to find out that he was worth enough above the exemption to pay for what he bought, thereby helping the debtor and not injuring the merchant. It seems to me that our Legislature could do no act that would be appreciated by the mass of the people more than the repeal of the now infamous Homestead Law.

Yours for justice, JAS. J. WILSON. Apex, N. C., R. F. D. No. 2.

Burried Here.

The remains of the late Mr. Isaac Oettinger, a former citizen of Raleigh who died a few weeks ago in New York, were laid to rest in Oakwood Cemetery Sunday afternoon, being the first cremated remains that were ever interred here so far as can now be ascertained.

The family had the body cremated in New York and relatives arrived here with the ashes Sunday, the burial in Oakwood being immediately after the arrival of the train, the funeral being in the presence of a large gathering of friends.

Mr. Oettinger was for several years a resident and leading merchant of Raleigh. He was highly esteemed by all.
