Every farmer in Polk county should subscribe for one or more shares in the Farmers Co-operative Market. It means extra dollars to you to have it.

What Cooperation Means.

Farmers in Limestone Co. Alabama, built up a fine hog-raising industry, but they were far from any central market and sold their animals to professional buyers. The returns to the farmers were very disappointing. A Better Farming Association was organized and their hogs marketed cooperatively and on twenty car loads sold in this way received four cents a pound more than offered by local buyers. The saving in one year was around $12,000.

Farmers around Orchard, Nebraska, organized a co-operative association and marketed $147,850 worth of their products. When they assembled in Orchard a short time ago one of the local merchants furnished an orchestra for their entertainment. His trade had increased fourfold since the cooperative association began operations, he said. The town had become a popular trading point with farmers who had patronized it but little before. Moreover, those who had been steady patrons had more money to spend because they were no longer dividing their profits with several sets of buyers and sellers.

Farmers in a small southeast Missouri town sold a car load of melons to an out-of-town buyer for sixty dollars. The buyer said that was all he could pay as the city markets were glutted, but there were other buyers in town who knew the city markets were not glutted and started a spirited bidding. The melons were resold four times before they left the town and the last price was $340. But only the sixty dollars paid to the farmers remained in the community. Such practices led to the organization of the Southeastern Missouri Melon Growers' Association, which sells the farmers' products cooperatively. Returns to the farmers have in many cases been increased to four or five times the amount received under the old method of selling to chance buyers.

Marriage of Interest.

Annual Childrens' Day.

The Childrens' Day at the Methodist church last Sunday was well attended. Every little speaker did well and the songs sung by the little ones were very sweet. Russell Locke playing on the violin was much enjoyed by all.

Bibles and pins for regular attendance were awarded by the superintendent, Walter Jones.

A Good Woman.

Miss Lucy Roach, a lovely and much loved lady passed into the great beyond Monday June twenty-seventh.

Miss Roach was in her usual health on Saturday and went to Ryder Hall to complete preparations for work she anticipated doing this summer. Her illness thus lasted only one day and the announcement of her death came as a shock to her many friends.

The body was taken to her old home in Sumter, S. C., on Tuesday.

The Assembly

The local committee planning for the Congregational Assembly to be held in Saluda during July and August are doing everything they can to make the season a delightful and inspiring one, not only for the Congregationalists who may be present but for the entire community. They are expecting to secure some very fine addresses by well known men and women and a few entertainments in addition to those which will be given by local talent. Further announcements will be made in the churches on Sunday and at the Fourth of July celebration to be held under the auspices of the "Reds" of the Civic League.

Every citizen who has the best interests of Saluda at heart will support this movement to the extent of his ability and influence for the benefit it will bring to the community. There is every reason why this assembly may become as noted and valuable if not as large as some of the others in this Blue Ridge mountain region. This will mean increased numbers of summer visitors and the inspiring and broadening influence that these religious and educational gatherings always create.

It is the plan of the promoters of the assembly to begin on a modest financial basis using as far as possible those prominent people spending their vacations in Saluda, or passing through Saluda to reach their appointments on other meetings of a similar character.

To provide for the financial outlay that must be made, season tickets will be placed on sale next week and it is confidently expected that a large number of citizens, summer residents and visitors will secure them. A tennis court is being prepared for the use of which will be free to those holding season tickets. A small fee will be charged to others.

Inquiries will be answered by J. W. Dunn, secretary of the Saluda Board of Trade, in the office of the Pickard Company and at the boys' dormitory on the seminary grounds.
