How Much is it Worth to be Sure?

It's worth a lot; you'll say, if it is your life that is being experimented with

Practically all drugs and medicines used in treating disease, preventing illness and in fighting epidemics go through the hands of the modern pharmacist. Yet, the margin of profit is so small, if only a few of the drug stores had all the business of supplying medicines for the sick, they would not be able to stay in business and continue to furnish the many conveniences of the modern drug store, which operates faithfully through longer hours than most any other business

That is the reason why the modern druggist carries a multitude of related articles that he must sell in order to be able to serve you when an emergency occurs.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Never was a more sincere service than that held in memory of Mr. Lindsey at the Episcopal Church, at noon on Thursday. The large audience was aware of that other company gathered in the Kentucky home of Mr. Lindsey's fathers and of his own youth, to lay away all that was mortal of this honored friend and close companion.

Some of the quiet company came to honor Mr. Lindsey as the good citizen, some to bear testimony to his helpful kindness, some thinking more of his fine and well directed ability, many of his older friends remembering the great renunciation which preceded his coming to these mountains, the brave fight and the victory which followed, but to all came most clearly the thought of the bright, radiant personality which made him so beloved.

When an old, lame colored woman was kindly allowed to carry her floral tribute up to the chancel the circle seemed complete, the entire community, as one, offering its loving tribute to the memory of a many-sided much loved citizen.

The kindly burial service of the Episcopal Church was begun and ended by the singing of soothing hymns and by and by noble words of living faith, comfort. No eulogy was given, none was necessary, but the spirit, the essence of this good life, the service which Mr. Lindsey gave so naturally and so gladly, was commended to each one of us as an ever living example.

Neither voice nor pen may speak of the harmony of his home nor of the grand and sustained courage with which he left it.
