

"Now I Am Well and the Mother of Two Children"

Just Another Story About the Goodness of PE-RU-NA

Mrs. Anna Linder, R. F. D. No. 1, Box 44, Dassel, Meeker County, Minn., writes: "For two years I suffered with that terrible disease, chronic catarrh. Fortunately I saw your advertisement and took Pe-ru-na. Now I am well and the mother of two children. I owe it all to Pe-ru-na. I would not be without that great remedy for twice its cost, for I am well and strong now. I cannot speak in too high terms of its value as a medicine."

For more than half a century Dr. Hartman's Pe-ru-na has been performing just such wonderwork as this.

Pe-ru-na is sold everywhere in both tablet and liquid form. Insist upon having genuine Pe-ru-na.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches, get busy with good old Musterole.

Musterole is a counter-irritant that relieves congestion (which is what a cold really is) and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. First you will feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole, 35c and 65c, in jars and tubes.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

GOOSEBERRIES ONE OF HARDEST FRUITS

Gooseberries are one of the hardest and most dependable of bush fruits. They do best while still young (two to six years of age). They can be made to produce good crops over a longer period of time than this, but proper pruning and cultural methods must be given.

The fruit is produced on one-year-old canes or lateral branches. If allowed to grow naturally, the bush in time becomes a dense mass of canes, many of which are old and not fruitful. When they reach this state, heavy pruning of the old wood, particularly in the center of the bush, and of the old heavy branches that rest on the ground should be practiced.

Of course, it would be better not to wait for the bushes to reach this condition, but folks who have only a few plants, generally wait till they reach this condition before they attempt to rejuvenate them. It does not make a great deal of difference what method is used in pruning, so long as enough of the young fruiting wood is left.

Under the best of conditions the bushes under cultivation are not long lived. Possibly the immense crops produced may have something to do with this. A field that we once owned produced more than 800 crates (24 quarts) per acre. This crop was produced the fifth year after planting and no heavy crops were harvested after this. As growers, we found that it paid us best to renew the plantation every five or six years.

Gooseberry plants are easily propagated, but west of the Mississippi they must be rooted on the parent plant before the branches are cut away. In the great nursery sections of the East they can be started from cuttings. Only a small percentage of the cuttings will grow in the Middle West.

Because of the national quarantine act, gooseberry and currant plants cannot be shipped west of the eastern boundary of Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma. Folks in this territory and beyond must either grow the new plants or get them from someone who does.

Usually the unpruned branches that rest on the ground will take root, and these can be dug up in late fall or early spring and used as new stock. If plants have not rooted, it is a simple matter to bend over the branches of the old canes and then mound the whole plant with soil, leaving only a few inches of the canes-uncovered.

Nearly every twig will strike root by fall, though some folks let them remain two seasons before digging them up and then subdivide them. The heavily rooted branches may be planted where they are to remain. Very small branches, even though they have only a few small rootlets, can be transplanted in the garden or nursery and will make splendid plants in one or two years.

Folks who want to start either gooseberry or currant bushes, should remember that these plants are among the first in the spring to start into growth, and should be planted while they are still dormant.

Light Types of Pruning Induce Highest Yields

That the lighter types of pruning are giving the largest trees, earliest bearing, and largest crops is seen from data just compiled at the Ohio experiment station. Similar results have been obtained at many other stations.

Of the four varieties in the nine-year-old orchard pruning experiment at the Ohio station, Black Ben Davis yielded highest in 1924, followed in order by Stayman Winesap, Wilson Red June, and Baldwin. This orchard is divided into nine plots each with a different type of pruning.

The highest yielding plot received only a light dormant pruning, the lowest received a heavy dormant pruning and a heavy summer heading back. It is evident that summer pruning has not induced fruitfulness as was formerly supposed.

The ratio of production in 1924 was as follows: Light, corrective pruning, 100; unpruned, 94; light summer pruning, 69; light dormant and light summer, 67; heavy summer, 63; heavy dormant, 62; and heavy dormant and heavy summer pruning, 35.

In the light, corrective pruning which has required the least amount of labor and given the best results, both in tree growth and production, only the crossing and dead or dying branches were removed, together with a shortening in some of the leaders in order to develop the modified leader or delayed open-head type of tree.

Origin of Bartlett Pear

The colonists from England brought the Bartlett pear here in pre-revolutionary times while the missionaries, moving from Mexico into California, took their pear trees with them and pears were a popular fruit and sold to the forty-niners during the gold rush which opened California. These pears came from trees in the old mission gardens. These old trees grafted with modern European and American varieties gave California its first taste of the popular Eastern varieties.

Odd Feature of Pear

A peculiar feature of the pear is that many varieties are not self-fertile and require other trees near them to produce fruit. Both the Bartlett and Kelfer are in this class although their self-sterility varies in different localities, in some of which a lone tree of either variety will not produce or produce very sparingly.
