

—(P. & A. Photo)
 America's hopes in the international helicopter competition to be staged in April rests with this machine, designed by a Chicagoan. The prize is $250,000, offered by the British Air Ministry.

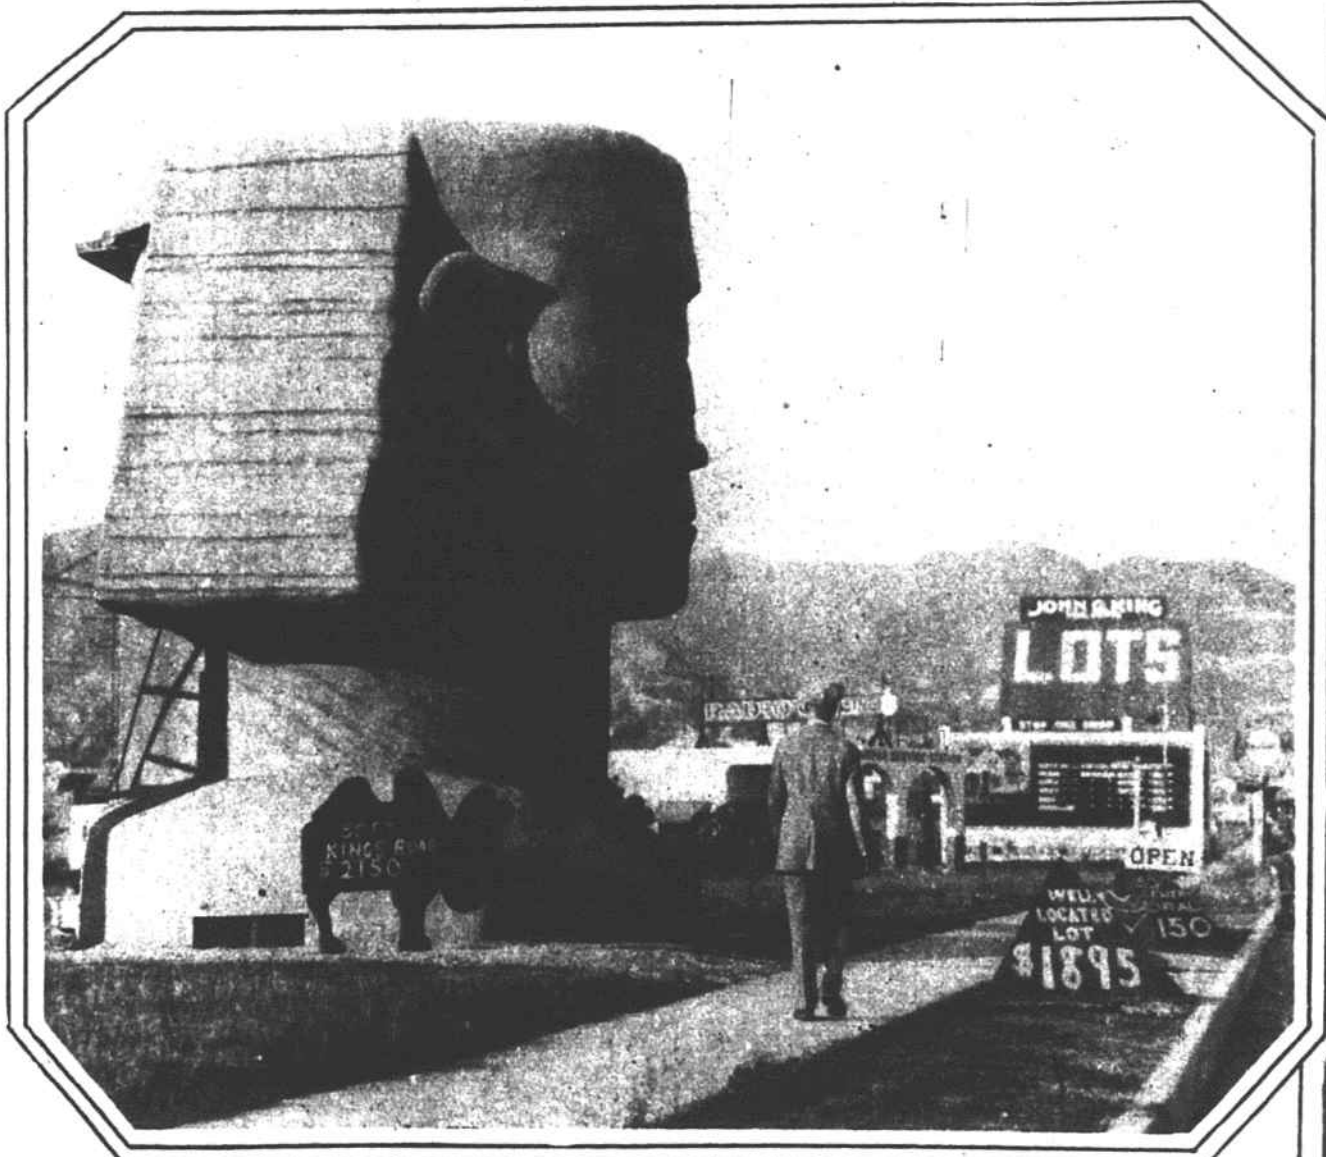

The statues of the Saints of London, have been weathered away and they are being replaced by originals.

Chicago cosmeticians, judging their beauties on artistic coiffure and use of lipstick and rouge, present the following winners: The winner (left), Miss Myrtle Anderson of Chicago; second (center), Miss Madelyn Storrer of Detroit, and third (right), Miss Emilie Kost of St. Louis.

It wasn't any laughing matter when hyenas ate the tail of this circus lion who, while dozing, put his tail between the legs of his neighbors' cage. A veterinarian is cauterizing the wound.

The sheik of Hollywood is in reality none other than a real estate office. It is even considered strange in that land of unusual things. —(P. & A. Photo)

