Advice Given by Ancient Writers

The old sanitary laws devised by the ancients must be recognized by hygienic experts, as based on sound and scientific modern concepts, according to the Atlanta Constitution.

Dr. Otto Bauer, physician at Jena, writes of a German popular medical journal, Pierre Van Paassen comments on the Atlanta Constitution.

The Atlanta Constitution writes of the old sanitary laws are not the only ones that should be followed. The ancient sanitary laws are not the only ones that should be followed. The ancient sanitary laws are not the only ones that should be followed.

probrates how he had counseled his wife not to use so much white enamel for her complexion, to discard high-heeled shoes and not to dip too deeply in the rouge pot. And he added: "I counseled her to oversee the baking woman as she made the bread; to stand beside the housekeeper as she measured out her stores; to go on tours of inspection, for it seemed to me this would at once be walking exercise and gymnastics. And as a most excellent gymnastic, I recommend her to knead the dough and roll the paste; to shake the coverlets and make the beds. For by so doing she would enjoy her food, grow vigorous in health and her complexion would be lovelier." Socrates gravely assented to this and referred somewhat contemptuously to "ordinary fine dames, painted countenances of womanhood."

tical address on "What I Have Done, What I Am Doing, and What I Intend to Do," toward enforcing the law relating to the Eighteenth Amendment.

Then followed a children's mixed program on World Prohibition, "Help Lift the World to the Light," brought out by Mrs. Preston and well rendered by Miss Elizabeth McDonald, in an address of welcome, accompanied by the Misses Edna Crooks, Helen Lockhart, Lois Foster, Nellie Donnelly, Janet Durham, and Masters Warrington Preston, Hubert Butler and William Burton, in a lively refrain, waving flags and singing "Hurrah! Hurrah! America for Me! Hurrah! Hurrah! America the Free!" But "God and Home and Every Land," Our motto E'er Shall Be, For We're the Loyal Temperance Legion." "A Glad, Glad Day," by Miss Edna Crooks.

The second part of the playlet, representing Mother World wearing a loose white robe. Around her head was a light blue band on which was written "World" in gold letters. On her breast was a disk cut from light blue paper on which were traced the equator, parallels and meridians in black.

Japan, in the person of Miss Mary Sayre; China, Miss Florence Moore; Mexico, Miss Lenora Goodwin; India, Miss Mary McFarland; Korea, Miss Sara Milliken, and South America, Miss Edith Rhodes, certainly made one feel they were visiting foreign countries, for the costumes were very attractive and correct. Mrs. Merens and several of the mothers contributing to that part of the program.

A child representing the Anna A. Gordon Missionary Fund (Miss Mary Easter Morgan) entered in a white dress and a red, white and blue sash and cap, bearing a candle. Candles were presented in the course of the play to Japan, South America, China and Mexico, with the hope of the enlightenment of those countries.

The Masonic Lodge was represented by Rev. R. Dyer, who said it stood solidly back of the law, as they always do! His remarks were also addressed to those who might disagree with the Eighteenth Amendment but who should nevertheless obey the law enacted to enforce it.

A T-child recital, drilled by Miss Mills and performed by the Misses Raleigh Pace, Inez Caldwell, Lois Avant, Betty McFarland, Ruth Creasman, Alene Ward and Mildred Rippey, was executed with much expression.

Mrs. C. P. Morgan, president of the Parent-Teachers' Association expressed pleasure in the children's taking part in the exercises, believing it to be a help to their development. Obedience to the law, in school and at home, he said, would produce good citizens in the future.

An address, including anecdotes that applied and appealed to young people, was then made by Rev. P. E. Parker, showing the necessity of putting God first.

After a trip to the North, Dr. T. L. Justice gave as his experience that he saw no violation of the law in the hotels in which he had been. He also spoke strongly in favor of law enforcement.

"Facts" were brought out by Rev. J. F. Black that greatly impressed the audience and made them feel that "facts" alone without sentiment could decide absolute backing of the Volstead Act to enforce the law.

Thanks are extended to Professor Schilleter, who allowed use of the building, to Mrs. Preston, Miss Mills and others who drilled the children, to Mrs. Walter L. Jones, who drilled in music, to Master Little, stage manager, and to the audience of over a hundred that gave their appreciation of the W. C. T. U's efforts to push "Law Enforcement."

Typical American Boy?

The Boys' Club of Washington D. C. chooses in the person of Joseph Nevins, thirteen years old, "the most typical American boy."

ARTHUR BRISBANE, famous editorial writer, says:—Joseph is a fine young boy, but there ISN'T ANY TYPICAL AMERICAN BOY. There are tall thin boys, and short, fat boys that will be leaders of men later. There are blue-eyed, brown-eyed, pink-skinned and dark-skinned boys; thin, fat, tall, short, concentrated and dreaming, and any one of them may turn out to be THE great man of the United States thirty years hence.

It is some little thing, smaller than the head of a pin, located somewhere in the brain, that makes greatness, and it always goes with the ——— to stick at your job."

Can Always Do That
Biff—You know, when I get so old and feeble that I can't do anything but sit around I want to die off.
Bang—I don't. I want to live just as long as possible.
Biff—What do you think you'll get out of life when you get old like that?
Bang—Boy, I'll get a big kick out of just sittin' around and crabbly about how the younger generation is going to bow-wow.

Parent-Teacher Association Hold Meeting Monday.

The January meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association was held at the school building Monday afternoon with a full attendance. Mrs. Morgan, the president, presided and all the officers and committee chairmen were in their places with only one or two exceptions. Reports from the ten standing committees were made, giving account of their several activities for the past two months (for there was no meeting held in the month of December), and it was shown that no group of workers had been idle even through the holiday season. At the conclusion of the business session the audience was entertained with readings by Dr. Dwight Smith, who is a favorite with all Tryon audiences.

Genius Poorly Rewarded

The discovery of the correct position and physiological function of the heart, when announced by Andreas Vesalius, the Belgian master of anatomy, was received on the one hand with cold skepticism, and on the other with hot opposition. Slowly, grudgingly, the worth of it was recognized. Reward, in proper measure, was not given. But it provided the stepping-stone enabling William Harvey to discover the circulation of the blood.

Vesalius was a native of Antwerp, his period being 1514-1564. At fourteen he was a student of medicine in Louvain; at twenty he was in Venice, and the year following became public demonstrator at Padua. In Bologna he gained a professorship and in Pisa a similar chair. At twenty-eight his incomparable treatise on human anatomy appeared.—London Graphic.

Each Crop Grows Better

Most of the cork we make use of comes from Spain, although some other countries of southern Europe or northern Africa furnish some.

The first coat of bark to be removed is known as "virgin" cork, and is too coarse to be of much use except for tanning purposes. After the first stripping, the operation is repeated every eight or ten years, as the new bark forms, and cork of an improved quality is obtained each time. The second "crop" is good enough for making life belts, insulating material and the like, but is not sufficiently smooth and elastic for the manufacture of bottle stoppers, which are made from the best grades of cork only.

A mature tree will yield about 100 to 150 pounds of cork at each stripping.

Meant as "Slam" at Author?

What might be called a "reader's prize" was recently awarded a London book collector under conditions of the most perfect impartiality.

The reader in question, who is an inveterate hunter for rarities in first editions, had invested in an old copy of "Paul and Virginia," which he was attentively perusing. He read through the book and, somewhere toward the end, discovered that two pages were stuck together. Separating them with a penknife he found between them several French bank notes totaling 5,000 francs and the following note pencilled on the margin of the page: "Earnest reader and friend of this book who has read thus far, thou dost merit this reward."—From La Bulgare, Sofia. Cast Iron and Steel

To know the proper definition of everyday substances is sometimes very useful in argument. The latest for useful and cast iron are given us by a Japanese chemist in the Imperial University of Tohoku. Steel he defines as "an iron-carbon alloy with a content of carbon lying between 0.02 and 1.7 per cent." Cast iron is similarly "an iron-carbon alloy" but with a carbon content of "between 1.7 and 4.7 per cent."
