"APRIL'S COMING!"

"April's Coming!" calls the bluejay With his screaming bag-pipe cry. From the South I hear the calling Of the wild geese flying high.

"April's coming!" cries the jonquil As she scrambels out of bed With her little golden nightcap Closely tied upon her head.

"April's coming!" calls the plum tree As she furls her pink-white plumes, Fluttering in the morning sunlight, With her panoply of blooms.

Now the violet from her windows Lifts her wondering eyes of blue, "Oh, I see that April's coming And the world is made anew."

QUE AND CUT-WORK ATTAIN SELF-TRIMS FOR THE FELT HAT

The model illustrated is in an exquisite parme violet shade.

A clever treatment of felt is accomplished by slashing a given portion at regular intervals, then twirling each narrow strip under a row of firm stitching. The small hat to the left below shows how highly decorative this self-trim is.

The third hat is interesting because it is finished in a tailored way with three embroidered arrowheads, same as are employed on the cloth tailleur.

Increasing interest is manifested in hand-painted felt hats. Modernistic design is carried out in vividly colored and gilded conventional patternings. Also pastel felts are exquisitely detailed with flower painting done in nature's colorings. Cut-out work, the openings lined with gilded leather, varies the felt mode very attractively.

In answer to spring's call for straw, a pretty compromise is made in that bangkok and crochet visca-straw hats have brims of felt with an all-over applique of felt. Cut-outs trim the crown. Some milliners are using felt shapes as a foundation for ribbon flower-work and beaded ornamentation.

THAT SYMBOLIZE SPRING

Charmingly different is the new Spring millinery! Hats small and sleek, very severe—hats nonchalantly chic to be twisted and turned to please one's fancy—hats softly decorative, flattering in every line. The essence of Spring is found in delightfully new models of silks, satins, straws and combinations.

SALUDA

SALUDA

Saluda with three miles of paving, sewerage and more water mains to go in is going to be a lively place this spring and summer. Much property has changed hands and more will do so. Saluda is only waiting the magic touch of capital which with individual will make it one of the most attractive places in the mountains.

The Power Dam at the narrows of the Green River, although delayed, will some day be a reality, and will furnish power for many plants in Saluda and nearby cities.

The proposition of taking over one of our fine building sites and erecting a large up-to-date, all-the-year Baby Sanitarium is being considered. This will of course be in the nature of an enlargement of the one now run so successfully in the summer by Dr. Smith.

County Commissioner E. W. Thompson has become auditor for Wild Acres Development at Little Switzerland with headquarters at Asheville. Saluda is sorry to lose him and Mrs. Thompson even temporarily and hope they may soon return to their charming home here.

The new Howard Hotel has been a success from the start. More people have wintered in Saluda than ever before, many of whom are being accommodated there.

Miss Wilcox is improving her oily Hill property in a number of ways including a stone foundation under the main house. This is one of the most popular boarding places in town, at all seasons.

The removal of the Southern Railway "road" house to a site opposite the station has given much more room for parking autos in town and is a great improvement to both Main street and the community park.

Miss Helen Wilmer Stone is considering the addition of a tea room to her popular weaver shop, this summer.

There is to be another rural route from Saluda Post Office. It will go east to Tryon Mountain, thence to Howes Corners and return to the Pacolet Valley Highway.

There is every prospect for a good crop of apples this year. Orchards are being well cared for, pruned and sprayed. The cool March weather, while not agreeable to all is fine for fruit, as there is little danger of frost when the buds are held back so long. There was recently a pruning demonstration by H. R. Niswonger, extension expert, old at the Arledge orchard. Apple orchards well cared for are sure to pay owners a good profit as western North Carolina does not grow enough apples to supply its own markets.

A large planting of potatoes was made here in February. According to many old timers, they should do well this season, as they were planted in the right phase of the moon.

Three more cottages are going up in Overbrook Park and many others are planned in various sections. The fine new home of Mayor Little on Henderson street will soon be completed.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thompson are the proud parents of a baby daughter.
