TREASURE ISLAND SHOW WONDERS OF FAIRYLAND AT SESQUI EXPOSITION

Big and Little "Explorers" Throng Scores of Features Designed for Juvenile Visitors; Fiction Characters Seen in Characters

With so many wonders to catch the eye and hold the interest of the childish heart, probably the most interesting feature to the children, also many grown-ups is the vast fairyland within the blue-and-white paling fence known as "Treasure Island," at the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition, Philadelphia.

The admission fee of twenty-five cents entitles one to a slide down the mountain, a glimpse of the Magic Pool, rides on the Little Brownie Coaster, the tiny Ferris Wheel, the Carrousel, the Power Boats, a glimpse of the hourly Punch and Judy Show and a try at one's luck on the putting green.

The Canadian Rockies trip includes a journey past the Great Divide and through dark caves, making a circuit from Quebec to Vancouver. The Mountain Express, the locomotive and coaches of which are miniature models of the equipment used on the real railroad, is always in demand and throngs of grown-ups as well as their offspring crowd the station and await their turns for the journey.

The little explorers meet in the flesh such familiar figures as Peter Pan, Wendy, Robin Hood, the Pied Piper, Alice in Wonderland, Cinderella, Little Boy Blue and numerous other immortals who live in the pages of Fairy Tales and Nursery Rhymes.

The Magic Pool, the very name of which breeds mystery, and the the Wishing Steps are also the assembling points of the children. Daily many tots and their parents wind their way to the top of one of the mountains to investigate the wonders of the pool and the many wishes for ice cream cones and extra rides on the train are granted by the fairies who surround the Wishing Steps.

After filling themselves with the wonders of the island, the children can explore the lagoon in self-propelled boats, passing the Robinson Crusoe Hut on the beach and the other wonders, including a panoramic view of the entire island. The Wonderland also includes a replica of the Admiral Benbow, based on the description in Stevenson's book, tiny shops, a replica of Jordans, the Friends' Meeting House where William Penn worshipped in England, and attractive tea gardens, canopied with gayly-colored parasols shading little tables and chairs.

ABRUZZI RYE BEST FOR NORTH CAROLINA

RALEIGH, N. C., August 12—There are three good rules to follow in planting rye this fall. These are: Sow the Abruzzi variety, plant it early and sow it thickly.

"Many tests in different parts of North Carolina prove that the Abruzzi variety of rye is best suited to North Carolina conditions," says E. C. Blair, extension agronomist at rye was planted. Whether this was because farmers did not know the difference between the two varieties or whether they could get the Rosen rye cheaply, is not known.

Mr. Blair states that the Abruzzi can be planted in November but practical farmers have found that much better returns are secured when the rye is planted in September. Mr. Blair cites the instance of one field planted to Abruzzi rye on September 15 of last year.

A seeding of one bushel of the rye per acre will make the ground look green, states Mr. Blair, but from one and one-half to two bushels are necessary to secure a heavy crop. This is especially true if quick grazing is desired.

Demonstrations have shown that one acre of Abruzzi rye, sown thickly in September is more valuable than five acres of Rosen rye sown at the rate of one bushel per acre in November.

BETER SWINE FEEDING PAYS GOOD RETURNS

Raleigh, N. C., August 12—Because of the results secured by farmers who have fed hogs according to proper feeding plans, the number of demonstrations conducted by county agents in this work has increased about 300 percent in the last year.

W. W. Shay, swine extension specialist at Sate College, finds that last year at the middle of July there were 55 demonstrations with 730 hogs under feed. At the same time this year, there were 174 such demonstrations with 3,617 hogs. Each of these demonstrations is carefully conducted. The hogs are weighed at the beginning of the feeding period, an accurate record kept of all feed given, the cost computed and the weights of the hogs at the close of the period are obtained.

"This work has been under way for four years," says Mr. Shay. "During that time over 600 farmers have conducted feeding demonstrations. We have made out the feeding schedules to be followed and have tabulated the results of the demonstrations. During that time we have seen the price of hogs as low as $8.50 per hundred pounds and we have seen it as high as $15. Corn has sold by the carload as low as sixty cents per bushel and as high as $1.50 per bushel.

During the four years, growers have been urged to govern the breeding dates of their hogs so as to get the pigs off the soft pork producing feeds at a weight not exceeding 80 pounds and to add approximately 115 to 145 pounds before selling them, just under 200 to 225 pounds.

Arctic Robinson Crusoe

Russkoe Ustye, in the Yakutsk province of Siberia, is one of the northernmost settlements on the globe, and beyond a doubt one of the loneliest. A Russian exile who lived in the province refers to his life in the settlement of six houses and twenty-two people as that of an Arctic Robinson Crusoe.

WILLIAM WHIPPLE SINGER

A lover of the sea, in command of a vessel before he was twenty-one years of age, was the beginning of the career of William Whipple, New Hampshire signer of the Declaration of Independence. The one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the document is being celebrated by the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition in Philadelphia.

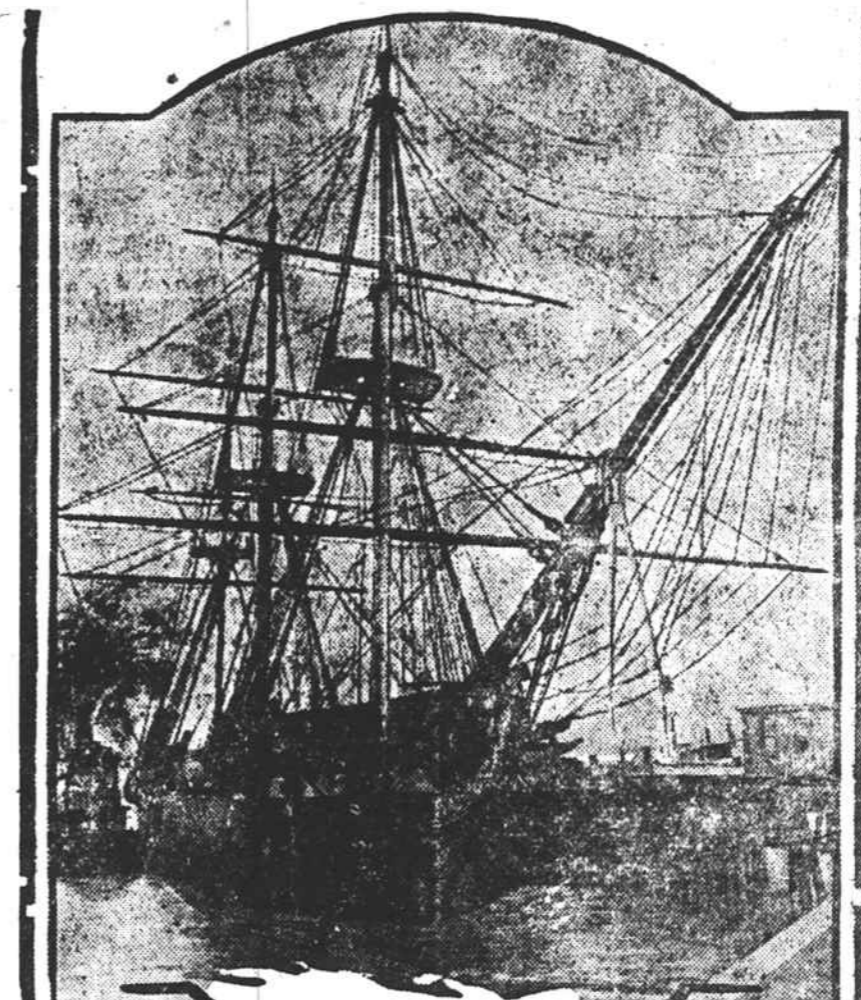

He engaged in European, West Indian and African trade, and brought may slaves to America. During the Revolution he liberated all those which belonged to him. The young sailor abandoned the sea in 1759 to enter business with his brother in Portsmouth, continuing in this until two years before the Revolution.

Whipple received the commission of Brigadier-General in 1777, and commanded a brigade of New Hampshire troops at Saratoga and Stillwater. He was active in the campaign against Burgoyne, and after the latter's surrender he signed the articles of capitulation with Colonel

James Willmser on behalf of General Horatio Gates. General Whipple, was afterwards selected as the officer under whose charge the British troops were conducted to their encampment on Winter Hill near Boston. Robert Morris appointed him financial agent in New Hampshire in 1782, but he resigned soon after the appointment. He was president of the board created to settle a land dispute between Pennsylvania and Connecticut concerning the Wyoming domain. Subsequently he was named Judge of the Superior Court and held many other offices until his death in November, 1785.

Ginger Tarts

By Josephine Jessup "Shall I read you the synopsis, Horace; or do you remember where we left off last time?" Since Dr. Thornton's eyes had begun to trouble him, his wife read aloud a great deal.

"But all this is far away from our story. Can you forgive poor Sam's food habits, and read some more about him?" "I think you're mean," Fay pouted charmingly.
